Biographical Sketch

Born on October 2, 1901, in Chicago, IL, Stanley Fahlstrom, M.D., attended Augustana College prior to receiving his B.S. from the University of Illinois College of Medicine in 1923 and his M.D. from the same in 1925. He joined the Loyola University School of Medicine in 1929 as an instructor in medicine and remained there until retiring as an Associate Clinical Professor of Medicine in 1970. From 1943 to 1946 Dr. Fahlstrom served as a Colonel in the Medical Corps of the United States Army, where he was the Chief of the Medical Service for the 108th General Hospital, the Loyola University School of Medicine's affiliated unit, and went from New Orleans to Great Britain to Paris, France with the unit. During activation, the 108th General Hospital admitted 56,800 patients, of which 19,600 were medical admissions, his direct responsibility. Dr. Fahlstrom was also responsible for the assignment, supervision, and training of subordinate officers; post-war refresher training of combat medical officers; and interim replacement medical officers.
