NATIONAL JESUIT STUDENT LEADERSHIP CONFERENCE

Loyola will host the 2011 National Jesuit Student Leadership Conference (NJSLC) from July 6-10. IPS students are encouraged to submit a conference workshop proposal at

<https://spreadsheets.google.com/viewform?formkey=dGU1aGhSdmhLd1JUJ3ctd29qZlF2VEE6MQ>

The NJSLC gathers students from the 28 Jesuit universities from across the country to develop their individual and collective leadership skills. This year's conference is themed "Go Forth and Set the World on Fire!" It aims to ignite students' passion and stir them into using their talents to affect change beyond what they currently imagine, in their communities, in their futures, and in the world. The first proposal deadline is approaching. Contact the conference team or visit www.luc.edu/njslc for specific details.

SANCTUARY
A SAFE PLACE FOR VULNERABILITY

Safety is the foundation for awareness, for connecting with self and with others. It is the rich soil in which all good things grow. Pain, fear, and anger are a challenge to safety. If they are not faced directly, safety is eroded, and life is diminished. These moments of vulnerability call for careful attention, and require an informed response. Learn how to stay present to these feelings - and discover the strength available within your vulnerability. Learn how to be soft - and strong.

We will gather to create a communion in spirit that embraces the uniqueness of each member. We will create a safe place, even as we learn how to do this. Music, guided meditation, self-reflection, and self-expression with word, sound, and movement will fill the space that we open together.

Dates: Saturday, April 9th, 8:30 to 4:00.

Place: Claret Center Conference Room

Presenter: Allan Schnarr, M.Div., PhD.

Fee: $100 (limited scholarships available)
