

Institute for Consumer Antitrust Studies

Loyola University Chicago School of Law

Research Fellowship

The Institute for Consumer Antitrust Studies invites applications for a Research Fellowship for the upcoming academic year (2008-09). The Research Fellowship is designed to encourage junior scholars in law, economics and business to pursue theoretical, empirical, and or applied research in antitrust and/or consumer protection law in keeping with the Institute's mission of promoting a more consumer friendly competitive economy. The Research Fellowship will consist of:

- A Stipend of $38,000 plus benefits
- A small research budget
- Office space, computer facilities, and library privileges
- Opportunities to present Work-in-Progress
- The possibility of teaching one course or seminar for additional compensation depending on the applicant's background, experience, and teaching interests and the Law School's needs
- A Faculty Mentor to assist with the anticipated research program
- Participation in the intellectual life of the Institute and the Law School

Applications will be accepted on a rolling basis starting April 1, 2008 and may be submitted electronically to <https://www.careers.luc.edu>. Applications should consist of:

- a current c.v. including a list of all publications
- a research proposal of not more than 2,000 words
- A writing sample of preferably published work
- Two letters of reference discussing the applicant's ability to successfully complete their proposed research project
- A statement of teaching interests (if applicable) including a course description and any available syllabi

More information about the Institute is available at <http://www.luc.edu/antitrust>.
Inquiries about the Institute and the Research Fellowship may be directed to Professor Spencer Weber Waller, Director, Institute for Consumer Antitrust Studies, swalle1@luc.edu or 312-915-7137.

LUC is an Equal Opportunity/Affirmative Action employer and educator with a strong commitment to a diversified faculty.