Apply now for Summer 2018, Fall 2018, January 2019 and Spring 2019 Visiting Professorships

For more information about the Visiting Professor Program, contact Kelly Heath in the Office for International Programs kheath2@luc.edu .

Application Deadline: Monday, December 5th, 2016

Professors from Loyola University Chicago have the unique opportunity to support the USAC mission and internationalize their home universities by teaching abroad. Visiting Professors establish contacts with foreign colleagues, enhance their own foreign language acquisition, strengthen and support international education and study abroad on campus, diversify course curriculum, and develop international relationships for research and other purposes.

The mission of USAC is to provide students with the opportunity to develop the knowledge, skills, experiences, and attitudes that are necessary to prepare them for the global society of the 21st century. The Consortium's goals are to administer study abroad programs for undergraduate and graduate students and to internationalize Affiliate Universities by offering teaching opportunities abroad and faculty exchanges, establishing links to strengthen institutional teaching and research, contributing to university diversification by facilitating the recruitment of foreign faculty and students, and supporting international initiatives on campus.

Qualifications for Visiting Professorships

Candidates must be full-time faculty members with at least a Master's degree who are in good standing at a USAC Affiliate University and who will be returning to their home university following their term abroad. Other key qualifications include:

- superior teaching abilities reflected in student evaluation summaries
- flexibility regarding international living and working conditions, esp. with regards to teaching technology and schedules
- willingness to enthusiastically experience local culture with students
- contribution to the host university overseas, in addition to teaching the selected course(s)
- active participation in publicizing and recruiting for their course(s) and program to ensure sufficient course enrollment

When, where, and what can I teach?

Summer, January, or semester positions are available at USAC Specialty Program sites; the available subject areas in specific terms and locations are listed below. Proposed courses should be related to the program site/region/nation, or somehow relevant to being taught in an international setting. Language of instruction may be English or the appropriate foreign language. Please consult the USAC website (usac.unr.edu) for program descriptions, entire course offerings, and sample schedules to understand the context in which your proposed course will be taught. Visiting Professors teach one course during summer and January sessions and two courses during semester programs.

Terms of the USAC Visiting Professor Program

Summer and January Session Programs:

- Visiting Professors (VPs) in Summer and January Sessions usually teach one course.
- Summer and January VPs are hired and paid directly by USAC as contract employees.
- Summer and January VPs are compensated as follows:
 - 1-credit course in a 3- or 4-week program: $1500 (gross) and travel reimbursement
 - 1-credit course in a 5+ week program: $1850 (gross) and travel reimbursement
 - 3-credit course in a 3- or 4-week program: $2750 (gross) and travel reimbursement
 - 3-credit course in a 5+ week program: $3450 (gross) and travel reimbursement

Semester Programs:

- Semester Visiting Professors (VPs) usually teach two 3-credit courses.
- There are three options for structuring a Semester Visiting Professorship:
 - Faculty Exchange: We encourage the Visiting Professor's department to consider replacement faculty from one of our host universities abroad to fill the Visiting Professor's position while teaching abroad for USAC. In the event of an exchange, the exchange professor would teach two courses in the Visiting Professor's department for a salary of $11,000 paid by USAC, and the Visiting Professor's department would receive $1,000 from USAC to minimize administrative burdens such as visa processing and assistance in locating housing. The home department will inform USAC of the desired characteristics of the exchange professor and USAC will solicit applications based on these preferences. The home department will review applications and will select the candidate of their choosing. The USAC Visiting Professor will receive his/her regular salary, benefits and status from the Home University during his/her semester abroad, according to the policies and procedures of the Home University.

- Departmental Reimbursement: Visiting Professors who will receive their regular salary, benefits and status from the Home University during their semester abroad (according to the policies and procedures of the Home University), and will not be paid directly by USAC. Instead, their home department will receive $11,000 to help defray replacement expenses for the semester of the Visiting Professor's participation abroad.
- Direct payment by USAC: Visiting Professors who will not be under contractual obligation with their home university during their semester abroad can be hired as contract employees and paid the $11,000 directly by USAC for teaching the two USAC courses.

Logistical Considerations Pertaining to All Visiting Professors:

- USAC provides assistance in locating housing abroad, but VPs are responsible for any costs. While exact prices cannot be established until closer to departure, we can share pricing from previous years with you upon request.
- While USAC will provide any assistance it can to determine and help obtain any necessary visas for Visiting Professors, it is ultimately the responsibility of each Visiting Professor to research and obtain the appropriate visa.
- Visiting Professors may enroll in most USAC courses at no cost. Any optional/additional expenses for housing, participating in optional tours, meals, health insurance, textbooks, flights, courses with additional fees, etc., will be paid for by the Visiting Professor.
- Qualified dependents and companions of faculty are eligible to take USAC courses at a discounted rate (contact Sabrina Harris in the USAC Central Office for more details).

Expectations for All Visiting Professors:

- Upon selection into the Visiting Professor program, your participation is still contingent upon student enrollments. USAC courses will only be confirmed if at least 3 students are enrolled in each Visiting Professor course by around the student application deadline.
- It is expected that Visiting Professors attend and participate in the on-site orientation. Be prepared to introduce yourself and your course (this is your last opportunity to recruit additional students). It is also expected that you share your own international experience (if applicable), your motivations/goals for going abroad, how it affects/ties in with your research, course development, etc.
- You will be expected to live in the city where your USAC program is located in order to allow you to fully participate in all aspects of the program inside and outside the classroom.
- While on site, you are expected to become a part of the program and/or host community. Please give some thought to how you could contribute to the campus or local community through activities such as giving a presentation to local faculty or the general public, tying in your work with local events, organizing a workshop, etc. There is a lot of room for your own ideas here. Please be aware that, depending on the location, host university campuses may not have as many local faculty members present during the summer/winter months.
- Upon return, Visiting Professors will complete at least one project to help internationalize their home campus. These projects may include but are not limited to presenting research, writing testimonials or newsletter articles, or giving presentations to faculty or students.
- Visiting Professors are expected to actively participate in informing their students about their program and course in order to ensure sufficient enrollment.

Course Proposals

One course will be chosen for summer and January sessions, two courses for fall or spring programs. However, please propose a minimum of two courses and list additional courses that you can teach. Upon review of your proposed courses/CV and given the circumstances for each term at the program locations, it is possible that you will be asked to teach a course other than your top two proposed below. This is the chance, however, to propose a new teaching direction within your area of expertise, a location-specific version of a course you teach in your home department, or some of your most rewarding and interesting courses. This is an opportunity to both improve/refine pre-existing courses and to stretch into new directions and areas. Keep in mind that, after selection, your course will need to be approved at multiple different USAC Affiliate Universities and your own home department. For courses to be articulated within the Business School, a terminal degree is required.

Most USAC students are undergraduate sophomore and junior level students coming from colleges and universities from all across the US (with a few international participants, and sometimes local students, as well). They enroll in 300+ level courses; however an introductory course may, on occasion, be appropriate. Graduate level (400/600) courses are often suitable. Please note that foreign language courses (for example, Beginning, Intermediate, Advanced Spanish) are taught, by design, by local faculty only. Please see the tables on the following pages for the desired course subject areas.

Please refer to the USAC website and/or the current catalog to understand the current course offerings and special areas of focus in a given program location. Consider how your proposed course would fit into the context of the courses offered in that program without duplicating existing courses. USAC courses that are not listed as courses taught by Visiting Professors are typically part of our regular offerings, and whenever possible, your proposed courses would complement, rather than compete, with these courses. The challenge here is to balance the specificity of place, and of your teaching specialties and interests, with the general needs and interests of the student audience attending the program.

A note about outside trips and activities: While we encourage ways to take the students outside the classroom for hands-on learning experiences, USAC has no additional funds budgeted for activities which take place outside the classroom. Keep in mind also that summer and January terms are so short that it is often difficult to arrange for guest speakers or trips within that timeframe. If your course requires expenses for course-related activities such as additional field trips or activities outside of the classroom, you must indicate that in your course proposal and students will pay a surcharge for taking your course. It is important to balance value with cost. Clearly, students may find high fees an obstacle and not enroll in the course for that reason. Please consider this when planning for your course and understand that if you desire to add outside activities at a later date, it may not be possible. It is the responsibility of the Visiting Professor to plan, organize and lead such activities. The Resident Directors abroad will only be able to offer suggestions for the planning and will not be responsible for organizing activities for Visiting Professors.
