Getting Started

To purchase a license to use TeachingLaw.com for three years, click on the student registration link, add one "Student Access" to your cart, and follow the instructions to check out via PayPal. During the checkout process, you will have the opportunity to create your own username and password. If you leave these fields blank, a username and password will be created for you. We recommend you create your username and password at this point.

Completing Registration

Once you have successfully purchased TeachingLaw.com, log in using the username and password you selected during the check-out process.

If you did not select a username and password at checkout, they were auto-generated for you - you should receive an e-mail with those credentials. If you did not receive the e-mail or if you have forgotten your password, you can always click the request new password link to re-set your password (if your username was created for you, it is the characters before the @ symbol in your e-mail address).

Choosing Your Professor

Upon logging in, be sure to go to your My account page and select your professor from the drop-down menu at the bottom.

Changing Your Login Credentials

You can also use the My account page to change your username and password.
