FIVE-YEAR BIOLOGY/MASTER OF BUSINESS ADMINISTRATION

OVERVIEW
The BS in Biology/MBA dual-degree program provides the type of broad training that contemporary employers value. It is the first program of its type in the Chicago area. Biology majors admitted to the five-year program generally take two to three of their required MBA courses during their senior year. The MBA courses are taught in the evening on a quarter system, with the first quarter beginning at approximately the same time as the Fall Semester.

CURRICULUM
Students complete all the normal requirements for the Bachelor of Science (BS) in biology. The MBA program consists of 18 courses. A maximum of four courses can be waived, which would bring the minimum total course requirement to 14. Students who have not yet completed Calculus I (Mathematics, MATH131 or 161 or the equivalent) with a grade of “B” or better may also need to complete prerequisite work in quantitative methods. Biology majors who have been admitted to the five-year program may be able to earn MBA course waivers and begin taking MBA courses while completing their undergraduate study. For a complete list of courses that fulfill the degree requirements, visit LUC.edu/quinlan/mba/academicprograms.

CAREER OPPORTUNITIES
With contemporary life sciences playing an ever-larger role in the economy, there is an increasing demand by employers for individuals with rigorous training in biology as well as business. Career opportunities in the biotechnology and pharmaceutical industries are expanding significantly, and are likely to continue to do so for the foreseeable future as applications of modern biological research continue to grow.

RESOURCES
The academic programs offered by Loyola University Chicago’s Quinlan School of Business are made stronger by our dynamic location in the heart of Chicago, just off North Michigan—Chicago’s Magnificent Mile. In addition to internships, students interact with Chicago’s leading businesses through guest speakers, special events and service opportunities. The Quinlan School of Business is dedicated to Loyola’s Jesuit tradition of educating values-based leaders for a rapidly changing global business environment. Class sizes are moderate, and students enjoy substantial personal attention from their professors. Virtually all faculty members have the highest degree in their respective fields and are qualified to teach courses at the undergraduate and the graduate level.
