Administrative History

Deborah's Place is a non-profit organization established in Chicago, Illinois, in December 1984 to help women who are or were homeless achieve their goals of stable housing, sustainable income, and greater self-determination. Serving hundreds of women per year, Deborah's Place operates at multiple locations that provide different services focused on the needs of women. Deborah's Place itself is an overnight shelter that functions primarily to meet basic needs and allows women to obtain temporary relief from the streets. Irene's Daytime Program provides a safe, secure environment for re-establishing confidence by helping women meet daily grooming needs and learn job related skills. Marah's Place is a transitional housing program for women established in March 1988. It offers up to two years of assistance to women making the transition from shelter living to housing and independence. Marah's Place also offers additional resources for mental and physical maintenance, individual case management, and ongoing supportive relationships. Deborah's Place also maintains several apartment buildings that offer apartment rentals to women on a sliding scale. See <http://www.deborahsplace.org/> for additional information.

Scope and Content

The Deborah's Place Records span the years 1983 to 2004 and include extensive administrative and operational records, documentation of fundraising and development efforts, and statistical information about services rendered. Additionally, there are transcripts and audiocassettes compiled as part of an oral history project about the founding of Deborah's Place. The materials are divided into seven series and arranged alphabetically within series.

Series 1: Administration, 1983-2002, n.d., Boxes 1-14

This series documents the history of the organization and the activities of the Board of Directors. It includes annual reports to the community, meeting minutes of the Board, various external reports, background information on homelessness and poverty, documentation regarding participation in larger homelessness initiatives in the city and region, and administrative correspondence.

Series 2: Development, 1987-2002, n.d., Boxes 14-27

This series documents the multiple ways in which Deborah's Place board and staff members have raised funds for the ongoing operational needs as well as for expansion of services. The organization conducted annual galas, sporadic events, and large capital campaigns, including "Light in the Window," which led to the development and building of the Rebecca Johnson Apartments, and "More Than Shelter: Finding Home," which culminated in the relocation of Marah's Place in 1995. Materials include budgetary information, donation records and solicitations to prospects, correspondence, public relations materials, outreach materials, and campaign publications. The Light in the Window campaign was particularly contentious and required numerous community meetings and solicitations for support.

Series 3: Operations, 1985-2004, n.d., Boxes 27-52

This series contains documentation of day-to-day activities of Deborah's Place, public relations efforts of the organization (draft professional and staff designs, pamphlets, press releases, public services announcements, media contacts, time capsule planning), statistical reports regarding services rendered, as well as long-term strategic plans. Also included are organizational policies, documentation of start-up of new ventures and sites, minutes of internal meetings, daily staff communication logs, grant applications and reports, participant surveys, and interim financial statements and variance analyses.

This series also contains published news articles and opinion pieces, almost entirely from Chicago presses, that highlight the struggles of Deborah's Place to build and move into the Rebecca Johnson Apartments (RJA) and to relocate Marah's Place, the transitional housing facility.

Additionally, there is a substantial amount of material related to the daily operations of Marah's Place. This includes correspondence, budgetary information, evaluations and grievances by participants, incident reports, meeting minutes, and events. Also included is documentation of the arduous relocation of Marah's to the Lakeview area, including meeting minutes, community outreach materials, documentation of public relations campaigns and events, letters of support, and petitions to obtain a Special Use Permit.

This series also includes documents related to organizational efforts to encouraging education and employment as a path to permanent and interim housing. This includes materials related to the Career Exploration Program, the Deborah's Place scholarship fund, and the internship program. In 1997, Deborah's Place established WomanCraft, Inc., a for-profit business venture that hires participants to produce and sell paper and jewelry. Documentation of this venture includes budgetary information, meeting minutes, business proposals, and reports.

Series 4: Oral History Project, 2001, Box 52

This series contains transcripts of the oral histories compiled in 2001.

Series 5: Audiovisual Materials, 1995-1998, n.d., Box 52-53

This series contains photographs, audio cassettes and video tapes that document the history of Deborah's Place, including audio cassettes that relate to the oral history project of 2001 (see Series 4), and the audio from a "Chicago Matters" taping that concerned Deborah's Place. Also included are two VHS recordings, one called "You are Deborah's Place" produced with the United Way, and a second that describes the programs of Deborah's Place in detail. Also photographs from events and for the Deborah's Place Newsletter are contained here.

Series 6: Oversized, 1998, n.d., Box 54

This series contains floor plans for the renovation of St. Alphonsus Convent to house Marah's Place.

Series 7: Restricted, Boxes 55-64
