Biographical History

Suellen Hoy was born in Chicago, Illinois, on August 14, 1942. She earned her B.A. from St. Mary's College in Notre Dame, Indiana, in 1965. She then attended Indiana University in Bloomington, Indiana, where she earned her M.A. and Ph.D. in 1971 and 1975 respectively. Dr. Hoy served in a number of capacities within the history profession, beginning her career as a history teacher at Marian Central High School in Woodstock, Illinois, and Highland Senior High School in Highland, Indiana, where she taught until 1968. In 1974, she taught as an assistant professor in the history department at the State University of New York until she was appointed director of the Public Works Historical Society in Chicago in 1975. Through her employment with the Public Works Historical Society, Dr. Hoy published two books with Michael C. Robinson entitled History of Public Works in the United States, 1776-1976, and Public Works History in the United States: A Guide to the Literature. In 1981, Dr. Hoy took a position as deputy director of the North Carolina Division of Archives and History in Raleigh, North Carolina, where she remained until 1987.

In 1987, Dr. Hoy earned a position as a visiting associate professor in the history department at the University of Notre Dame. In 1991, her husband Walter Nugent, also a history professor at the University of Notre Dame, served as a guest professor at University College Dublin in Ireland. Dr. Hoy accompanied her husband to Ireland and also served as a visiting professor at University College as she conducted research on Irish women religious. She used this research for the publication of her book From Dublin to New Orleans: The Journey of Nora and Alice, which she wrote with Irish historian Margaret MacCurtain, as well as the articles “The Journey Out: The Recruitment and Emigration of Irish Religious Women to the United States, 1912-1914,” published in the Journal of Women’s History in 1995 and “Walking Nuns: Chicago’s Irish Sisters of Mercy,” published in At the Crossroads: Old St. Patrick’s and the Chicago Irish in 1997.

When she returned to the United States in 1992, Dr. Hoy continued to research women religious orders, particularly those who resided in Chicago. Dr. Hoy published several articles on Chicago women religious orders in such publications as the Journal of Women’s History, Journal of Urban History, Journal of Illinois History, Chicago History, and U.S. Catholic Historian. In 2006, she published a collection of these essays as Good Hearts: Catholic Sisters in Chicago’s Past, which earned the Illinois State Historical Society’s Certificate of Excellence in 2007. In addition to her works on Catholic nuns, Dr. Hoy also published a book entitled Chasing Dirt: The American Pursuit of Cleanliness in 1995 and wrote numerous articles on issues such as public health, public works, and the history profession. Dr. Hoy has received numerous grants and fellowships to support her research and has also been recognized by the Conference of the History of Women Religious, earning their Lifetime Achievement Award in 2007. Dr. Hoy currently teaches at the University of Notre Dame as a guest professor and independent scholar.

Scope and Content

The Suellen Hoy, Ph.D., Papers consist of research files pertaining to Dr. Hoy’s publications on women religious orders. Most of the materials in this collection are copies of original documents located at other archival repositories and as a result the copyright for the materials resides with the original repository. Generally, the repository has marked the documents obtained from their archives by Dr. Hoy. Dr. Hoy’s research includes files on individual religious orders, Catholic schools and churches in Chicago, charitable organizations, immigration of Irish nuns, and social activism. Most of the materials are copies of newspaper articles and records held in other archives, but the collection also includes a selection of photographs, audio tapes, compact discs, slides, and videocassettes. The materials are divided by subject and arranged alphabetically within series.

Series 1: Publications, 1994-2004, Box 1

This series contains Dr. Hoy’s published books and articles, most of which discuss women religious orders in Chicago. Her works also cover topics related to women religious orders in Ireland and their immigration to the United States. Dr. Hoy’s book on cleanliness is also included in this series.

Series 2: Irish Immigration, 1810-2003, n.d., Boxes 2-6

This series consists of research files regarding the immigration of Irish nuns to the United States. Materials include diaries, biographical files, newspaper articles, academic articles and theses, and organizational records from the various religious orders researched.

Subseries 2A: From Dublin to New Orleans, 1835-1996, n.d., Box 2

This subseries contains research files used to write From Dublin to New Orleans: The Journey of Nora and Alice, a book that chronicles the journey of two Dominican sisters, Nora and Alice Prendiville, from their home in Ireland to their mission in the United States in 1899. Dr. Hoy based her research for this work on the diaries kept by both Nora and Alice during their journey and the collection includes copies of the diaries and research files regarding geographic locations, transatlantic voyages in the 19th century, and other nuns who immigrated to the United States in the 19th century.

Subseries 2B: “The Journey Out,” 1810-2003, n.d., Boxes 2-6

This subseries consists of research files regarding Dr. Hoy’s article “The Journey Out: The Recruitment and Emigration of Irish Religious Women to the United States, 1812-1914” published in the Journal of Women’s History in 1995. Documents include correspondence, newspaper articles, academic articles, and organizational records pertaining to Irish women religious orders, immigration, and missions in the United States in the 19th century. Religious orders particularly represented include the Dominicans, Holy Faith Sisters, Sisters of Charity, Sisters of Mercy, Sisters of St. Joseph, Sisters of the Holy Cross, Sisters of the Incarnate Word and Blessed Sacrament, Sisters of the Presentation, and Ursulines.

Series 3: Schools, 1837-2004, n.d., Boxes 6-17

This series contains research files regarding Chicago Catholic schools operated by women religious orders. Dr. Hoy particularly examines how these schools addressed the problems of racial discrimination and poverty within Chicago in the 19th and 20th centuries. Materials include correspondence, newspaper articles, administrative records, biographical records, and academic articles.

Subseries 3A: Illinois Technical School for Colored Girls, 1883-2001, n.d., Boxes 6-8

This subseries contains records used to write “Illinois Technical School for Colored Girls: A Catholic Institution on Chicago’s South Side, 1911-1953,” published in the Journal of Illinois History in 2001. The Religious of the Good Shepherd operated the Illinois Technical School for Colored Girls as an institution devoted to the education of orphan and impoverished African American girls. Materials include administrative records from the Illinois Technical School and the Chicago Industrial School, biographical records, newspaper articles, academic articles, and government reports.

Subseries 3B: Loretto Academy, 1893-2004, n.d., Boxes 8-12

This subseries consists of research files used to write “No Color Line at Loretto Academy: Catholic Sisters and African Americans on Chicago’s East Side” published in the Journal of Women’s History in 2002. Loretto Academy was operated by the Institute of the Blessed Virgin Mary, also known as the Sisters of Loretto, for the education of African American girls in Chicago. Research on Catholic schools in Chicago and the rest of the United States are included as well as files on racial issues in Chicago and its school system. Materials include administrative records for Loretto Academy and Mercy High School, biographical records, newspaper articles, and academic articles.

Subseries 3C: Magdalen Institutions, 1837-2003, n.d., Boxes 12-15

This subseries consists of research files used to write “Caring for Chicago’s Women and Girls: The Sisters of the Good Shepherd, 1859-1911” published in the Journal of Urban History in 1997. The Religious of the Good Shepherd operated the House of the Good Shepherd in Chicago as a preparatory school for orphan girls. Materials include administrative records for the House of the Good Shepherd, biographical records, newspaper articles, academic articles, and U.S. census data.

Subseries 3D: Our Lady of the Angels Fire, 1892-2004, n.d., Boxes 16-17

Women and Leadership Archives
Ann Ida Gannon, BVM, Center for Women and Leadership
Loyola University Chicago

This subseries consists of research files regarding the tragic fire at the Our Lady of the Angels School in 1958. Our Lady of the Angels was operated by the Sisters of Charity of the Blessed Virgin Mary. Dr. Hoy used her research on the fire for the article “Stunned with Sorrow” published in Chicago History in 2002. Materials include biographical files of some of the Sisters of Charity of the Blessed Virgin Mary, particularly the three nuns who lost their lives in the fire. Other records include newspaper articles, academic articles, memories and commemorations of the fire and its victims, and information regarding the student survivors and victims of the fire.

Series 4: Social Changes, 1892-2006, n.d., Boxes 17-23

This series consists of research files regarding the social changes that affected the lives and vocations of women religious orders in the 1960s. The records in this series discuss the changes enacted through Vatican II as well as the civil rights movement of the 1960s, particularly the effects within Chicago. Materials include academic articles, newspaper articles, biographical records, and administrative records.

Subseries 4A: Post-Vatican II, 1964-2006, n.d., Box 17

This subseries consists of research files regarding the effects of Vatican II on women religious orders. Topics covered include feminism and liberation theology and the works and biographical records of Francis Borgia Rothluebber, S.S.S.F. Materials include academic articles, newspaper articles, and biographical records.

Subseries 4B: Racial Issues, 1892-2006, n.d., Boxes 17-23

This subseries contains research files regarding the civil rights movement, particularly its effects in Chicago and the participation of women religious orders. A large portion of the records pertain to the Marillac House, an institution that is still operated by the Daughters of Charity in Chicago to serve impoverished families in the city. Other subjects covered include the Illinois Club for Catholic Women protest, Martin Luther King, Jr., Cabrini Green, and fair housing practices in Chicago. Racial issues in Chicago’s schools are also discussed with particular focus on Alvernia High School, St. Dorothy’s School, and Xavier High School. Materials include newspaper articles, academic articles and theses, biographical records, correspondence, organizational and administrative records, and interview transcripts.

Series 5: Women Religious Orders, 1843-2005, n.d., Boxes 23-37

This series consists of research files regarding the various women religious orders studied by Dr. Hoy. Most of the records have been divided by religious order with materials consisting of correspondence, biographical records, administrative and organizational records, newspaper articles, and academic articles and theses.

Subseries 5A: General Information, 1848-2005, n.d., Boxes 23-25

This subseries consists of research files regarding general issues that affected all women religious orders. Subjects include convent life, current issues, statistics, and nuns as teachers. Files on the Society of the Divine Word, the order of priests who operated St. Monica’s and St. Elizabeth’s Parishes with the Sisters of the Blessed Sacrament, Father Daniel J. Mallette, and Cardinal Mundelein are also included in this subseries. Materials include newspaper articles, biographical records, and organizational records.

Subseries 5B: Orders, 1843-2005, n.d., Boxes 25-37

This subseries consists of research files regarding various women religious orders, particularly those located in Chicago. Records are divided by religious order and arranged alphabetically. Subjects covered primarily pertain to biographical information on individual nuns and administrative records regarding the order as a whole. Materials include newspaper articles, academic articles, biographical records, organizational and administrative records, brochures and pamphlets, and school and parish records.

Series 6: Photographs, 1850-2004, n.d., Boxes 38-40

This series contains the photographs used by Dr. Hoy for her research and publication of her works on Catholic nuns. Most of the photographs portray nuns working in the Chicago area as well as Chicago Catholic parishes and schools. The images are primarily reprints, although a few original photographs are included as well, while some images are photocopies or printed scans of original photographs. A compact disc and several floppy disks also contain images. Postcards, greeting cards, and magazine ads are also included.

Series 7: Audio/Visual Media, 1872-2002, n.d., Boxes 41-43

This series contains audiotapes, compact discs, slides, and videocassettes pertaining to Dr. Hoy's research on women religious orders. The audiotapes consist primarily of interviews between Dr. Hoy and various nuns between 1996 and 2002 and the compact discs are music recordings by or in honor of women religious. The slides are taken from the same images in the photographs series and thus include images of nuns in Chicago and area Catholic parishes and schools. The videocassettes include documentaries on women religious as well as popular movies about nuns.

Series 8: Restricted Material, Boxes 44-49

This series includes Dr. Hoy's personal correspondence and is restricted until 2030.
