Biographical History

Rosalie Muschal was born on June 23, 1933. She graduated from Cathedral High School in Trenton, New Jersey in 1950 and four years later earned a Bachelor of Science Degree in Business Education from Rider University. In 1955, Muschal married Alfred Reinhardt and ultimately had four children: Alfred, Erika, Kurt, and Michael. Until 1973, Muschal-Reinhardt worked in several capacities: a public school teacher; a consultant to the Religious Education Program at St. Stephens Episcopal Church in Guayanabo, Puerto Rico (1970-1971); participated in the Adult Education and Retreat Ministry, Buenos Aires, Argentina (1971-1972); consulted on the Diocesan Religious Education for the Roman Catholic Diocese in Rochester, New York (1973-1974).

Notably, Muschal-Reinhardt actively pursued further education in the discipline of Theology. After completing the requirements for a Masters of Arts in Religious Education from Colgate Rochester Divinity School in 1969, she transferred to a Masters of Divinity Program where she studied until 1974. Then, in 1977, Muschal-Reinhardt completed a Master of Divinity degree from Loyola University Chicago (Jesuit School of Theology).

Rosalie Muschal-Reinhardt's education was often put into practice in her activism which was extensive in the 1970s continued throughout the 1990s. For example, she co-founded the Women's Ordination Conference in 1978. WOC, as the organization is commonly called, had the primary goal of the ordination of women as priests in the Roman Catholic Church. She also co-founded

Mary's Pence in 1988 which collected and donated funds for women's ministries. Muschal-Reinhardt also served as National Coordinator for the Women's Church coalition, later renamed the Women-Church Convergence. By the early 1990s, she became the co-coordinator of the Prism Collective with three other women whose goals included the fostering of "feminist scholarship for adolescent women particularly through single-gendered schools," "to publish books on women-affirming spirituality," and "make the world safer and saner for all women." The group published and/or produced several mixed-media projects including video "Choices at the Crossroads" in 1994.

She continued her interest in the elimination of sexism, racism, classism, heterosexism, and ageism in American society by becoming certified as a "Sage-ing" Leader with the Spiritual Eldering Program in 2001. Through this role, Muschal-Reinhardt participated in several conferences, meetings, and workshops to address the care of the elderly, support for elder care givers, and elder care education.

Muchal-Reinhardt continues to serve her community as a Covenant member with the Wheaton Franciscan Sisters in Wheaton, Illinois, a freelance lecturer and speaker.
