Administrative History

In the spring of 1982, Rosemary Radford Ruether gathered a small group of women to discuss an idea for a "real(1y) feminist, non-hierarchical" program that would give women seminarians the opportunity to work with female clergy in urban parishes and congregations. Gretchen Leppke was chosen as coordinator of the program.

In 1983, Women, Ministry, and the City (WMC) ran its first summer program which consisted of a one-day orientation and a six week internship in places such as Genesis House (a house of hospitality and nurturing for women prostitutes), Resident Emergency Shelter (REST), Sarah's Circle, and Kinheart among others. Initially, support for the program came primarily from the Chicago Cluster of Theological Schools. Subsequent financial support was also provided by the McCormick Theological Seminary. At about the same time, WMC partnered with the newly created Urban Academy and received a grant from the Association of Theological Schools, which made an extension of the programming temporarily possible.

After the abrupt closing of Urban Academy, WMC partnered with the Community Renewal Society of Chicago, which provided a working space, secretarial help, and handled program finances. Garrett Seminary also provided the group with working space while other organizations such as the Methodist Church, Women Methodists, and United Methodist Church contributed financially.

In 1988, WMC moved again to the newly formed Women of Faith Resource Center. The improvement offered partial relief from financial difficulties which had increased dramatically during the preceding few years. In 1990, Gretchen Leppke retired and a summer program was not offered. However, a year later, the program was renewed by Mundelein College which provided staff and meetings space. When Mundelein affiliated with Loyola University Chicago in 1991, the latter continued to sponsor the program and added formal structure, a board, a regular meeting schedule, and staff. As of 2002, the program was absorbed into the Institute of Pastoral Studies of Loyola University Chicago.

Scope and Content

The Women, Ministry, and the City Records span the period 1946 to 2002 and consist of 13 boxes. There are four series in this collection as described below. The material is arranged alphabetically.

Series 1: Administrative, 1982-2002, n.d., Boxes 1-3

Contains material related to the organizational structure of Women, Ministry, and the City, including bylaws, syllabi, Board Membership lists, meeting minutes, and board evaluations, as well as its day-to-day administration and planning. Also included is information produced during the absorption into Mundelein College and later Loyola University Chicago, including financial reports, bookkeeping records, program packets, and correspondence. These files cover the tenures of Gretchen Leppke, Peggy L. T. Garrison, Mary Lou Codman-Wilson, Barbara R. Isaacs, and Carolyn Vogt Groves as coordinators of the program.

Series 2: Program Management, 1982-1999, n.d., Boxes 3-4

This series is comprised primarily of student evaluations of the program and of sites at which they interned. Also included is correspondence with potential and actual supervisors.

Series 3: Teaching and Reference Materials, 1946-1997, n.d., Boxes 5-10

Includes subject files that were used for teaching and/or reference. The materials focus on women's ordination issues, the position of women in religion and in formal dominations. Other material includes booklets on feminist theology, bible study, women and spirituality, and social issues that affect women such as domestic violence and the equal rights movements. Broader issues include racism, urban Christian missions, and social justice.

Series 4: Audiovisual, 1973-1988, n.d., Boxes 10-13

This series includes audiovisual materials used primarily for training. Also included is a photograph of Gretchen Leppke and a photo album from 1988. The training materials consist of slides, VHS- and cassette-recorded lectures and conferences, and four 8mm reel to reel films.
