From the Desk of Fr. Mark Bosco, S.J.

Dear Friends and Colleagues,

St. Anselm's motto, fides quarens intellectum, can be translated as "faith seeking understanding." Anselm, a great medieval scholar, proposed that all inquiry and study should draw on the resources of both human experience and faith as we search for what God requires of us. Anselm's motto is the raison d'être of the Catholic intellectual life, for it suggests that reason is informed by faith as much as faith is clarified, even purified, by the light of reason.

The Hank Center wades into faith seeking understanding in a variety of ways this November. We invite you to the Pierre Teilhard de Chardin Lecture by the award-winning Irish poet John F. Deane, who will offer a meditation on the nature of experience in our search of transcendent meaning. A week later we move from the poetics of faith to the poetry of the cosmos: join us for our "Faith and Science Symposium" on astronomy, led by the renowned Cornell physicist, Jonathan Lunine.

We pivot from cosmology to cultural theory in our final event of the semester, Catholic Minds, Catholic Matters, for a discussion of the work of René Girard, led by Loyola's Andrew McKenna. Dr. McKenna has devoted much of his time these past few years going to Chicago-area jails and reading the literary classics with prison inmates. Dr. McKenna will reflect on this experience in light of Girard's theories on mimetic violence. All in all, a month of events that draw us into a rich conversation. Please see below for more details.

All good things,

A Luminous Absence: Poetry and the Need for God's Absence

Thursday, November 3
3:30PM-5:30PM

Loyola University Chicago
Palm Court, Mundelein Center
1032 W. Sheridan Rd.
Chicago, IL 60660

Irish poet and novelist John F. Deane is the 2016 Teilhard de Chardin, SJ, Fellow in Catholic Studies. He will give a lecture focusing on the poetry of Seamus Heaney, with additional work from poets Denise Levertov, Fred Marchant, George Herbert, Gerard Manley Hopkins, and others. Deane's talk explores the poetry of faith and endeavors to discover the personal response of poets to the person of Jesus Christ.

The work of Seamus Heaney provides the grounding for the notion of how the non-presence of God is deeply important for a real and living faith. If the absence of God to our senses is important, then poetry can also demonstrate the necessity for a prayer-life that is tied to poetic inspiration, an allowing of the mind and heart to listen and focus on the Other. Poetry and prayer are closely aligned in how the individual becomes permeable to God.

Event is free and open to the public.

Astronomy and Faith: From Lemaitre's Big Bang to the Jesuit Fathers of the Vatican Observatory.

Thursday, November 10
4:00PM-5:00PM

Loyola University Chicago
Palm Court, Mundelein Center
1032 W. Sheridan Rd.
Chicago, IL 60660

Against the backdrop of the present-day polemics regarding "science vs. faith" is the story of how the Big Bang model came to be, thanks to a Catholic priest. Frontier research in modern astronomy continues to be pursued today at the Vatican. Speaker Dr. Jonathan Lunine will describe his experiences working with these top-notch Jesuit astronomers.

Dr. Jonathan Lunine is the David C. Duncan Professor in the Physical Sciences and the Director of the Cornell Center for Astrophysics and Planetary Science. He is a member of the National Academy of Sciences and has participated in or chaired a number of advisory and strategic planning committees for the Academy and for NASA.

Event is free and open to the public.

MARTYRS AWARD

Presentation and Memorial Mass

Wednesday, November 16

Award Ceremony: 3:30 PM
Information Commons, 4th Floor

Mass: 5:15 PM
Madonna Della Strada Chapel

Loyola University Chicago
1032 W. Sheridan Rd.
Chicago, IL 60660

The Martyrs Award is given in honor of the UCA Martyrs in El Salvador and in support of the University’s commitment to social justice.

The award this year is going to The Comisión Intereclesial de Justicia y Paz. The work of the Comisión Intereclesial de Justicia y Paz is unique in that as an interfaith human rights organization it combines social analysis with intervention and advocacy. The commission has a deep concern for social justice for the indigenous communities of Colombia.

Event is free and open to the public.

Catholic Minds, Catholic Matters Lecture Series: René Girard, Moral Injury, and Literary Knowledge

Tuesday, November 15
3:30PM-5:00PM

Loyola University Chicago
McCormick Lounge, Coffey Hall
1032 W. Sheridan Rd.
Chicago, IL 60660

Professor emeritus Andrew McKenna will give a lecture on his volunteer work teaching two writing-intensive literature courses at Stateville Correctional Center. He will further discuss how René Girard’s sacrificial theory of cultural organization illuminates the links between Western literary masterpieces and the canon of African-American literature.

Dr. McKenna aims to encourage attention-and possible volunteer service- to the needs of humanist learning for a population that is mostly being warehoused to no benefit for anyone. His talk links humanistic and religious traditions to a critical understanding of institutional practices.

Event is free and open to the public.

Full Length Independent Feature Film Ignacio de Loyola

About the Center
The Joan and Bill Hank Center for the Catholic Intellectual Heritage exists to help faculty and students recognize and research Roman Catholic thought and its link to all academic disciplines in the university. It also seeks to convey that thought to other audiences inside and outside Loyola University Chicago.
