Do you want to become a change agent who reimagines what's possible in human health? Are you excited by the idea of designing community-wide wellness interventions? If you have the visionary mindset to tackle tomorrow's health challenges today, this is the school for you.

At Parkinson, we offer:

- EXPERIENTIAL LEARNING Through strategic partnerships with Chicago-area organizations, we connect you with internships that provide invaluable real-world experience in your chosen field. Our academic internships and service-learning opportunities place you directly in underserved communities and high-need areas, where you'll apply classroom knowledge to address genuine health disparities and social justice challenges.
- CAREER DEVELOPMENT The Career Services team facilitates internship and employment opportunities, as well as year-long resume workshops and career fairs. You'll also have access to the university-wide job portal through Handshake, and a connection to a network of 4,000+ alumni through LoyolaLinked. We also have the Parkinson Professional Development Series, which features panels and skill-building workshops specific to health-related fields.
- CONTINUING EDUCATION Why stop at one degree when you can earn two in five years? Our accelerated bachelor's/master's programs let you seamlessly transition from undergraduate study to graduate-level expertise. We also offer dual degree and certificate program options that prepare you for diverse career paths by combining multiple health disciplines.
- RESEARCH OPPORTUNITIES Through Loyola's Undergraduate Research Opportunities Program (LUROP), you'll have the chance to conduct research with a faculty member on a topic that interests you. This will allow you to apply classroom knowledge to real health challenges while building the professional network to support your accelerated career trajectory.
- ACCREDITED PROGRAMS Our programs have accreditation from external organizations like the Association of University Programs in Health Administration and the Council on Education for Public Health.

Toward healthier communities.
