SPEAK UP 2025: Summary Report

Results of Loyola's Student Survey on Sexual Misconduct

Introduction and Background

Loyola University Chicago is firmly dedicated to fostering a safe and caring community. As part of this commitment, the University takes seriously its responsibility to prevent and remedy sexual misconduct (also known as gender-based violence) in our community. In February of 2025, Loyola conducted its second SPEAK UP Against Sexual Misconduct Student Climate Survey (SPEAK UP Survey).The data below reflects the second SPEAK UP Survey conducted at Loyola from February into March of 2025, referred to herein as "SPEAK UP 2025." The first ever SPEAK UP Survey was conducted in April of 2024, some of the data referenced compares the year over year changes in the data collected.

The results of these surveys (and future surveys, which will be conducted hereafter every two years) will be used to inform University policies and prevention efforts related to student experiences of sexual misconduct – including sexual or gender-based harassment, stalking, dating/domestic violence, and sexual violence.

In 2021, an amendment to Illinois' Preventing Sexual Violence in Higher Education Act (110 ILCS 155/35) mandated all institutions of higher education to conduct an annual[1] sexual misconduct climate survey to assess students' experiences, outcomes, and perceptions related to sexual misconduct and college culture. The law also established a task force led by the Illinois Board of Higher Education (IBHE), which publishes a "base survey" that all higher education institutions in Illinois must administer precisely according to IBHE's direction.

The survey encompasses seven primary domains, presented here as:

1. Perceptions of Student Wellness and Campus Safety
2. Understanding of Resources
3. Consent (optional module, which Loyola chose to include)
4. Incidence of Behaviors Associated with Gender-Based Violence
5. Student Outcomes
6. Institutional Responses
7. Peer Responses

Administration

Loyola administered SPEAK UP 2025 from February 4 to March 13, 2025. The survey was sent to all Loyola students (undergraduate and graduate/professional, part-time and full-time)

[1] The Act was amended again in 2025 to reduce the frequency of the survey to once every two years, instead of annually, to provide institutions more time between surveys to utilize the data and to avoid survey fatigue.

enrolled at the time of the survey's administration. A total of 18,991 students were invited to take the survey.

The survey was administered via Qualtrics by Loyola's Office of Institutional Research and Analysis (OIRA, formerly the Office of Institutional Effectiveness) and the Office for Equity & Compliance (OEC) and distributed via email (with several reminders and other promotional activities over the course of the survey administration period). Student privacy and security was prioritized throughout the administration of the survey by not associating the survey with any individual student data, and measures were implemented to ensure that response data was anonymized and validated.

As an incentive for students to complete the survey, three prize packages were offered, which included: tickets to Lollapalooza, a summer festival package, and Loyola merchandise. Students who completed the survey to the end were offered the option to be directed to a separate survey (independent of the SPEAK UP Survey) to enter their contact information to be entered in a drawing.

Among the 18,991 students invited to complete SPEAK UP 2025, 1,690 students began the survey, 1,645 students completed the survey through Question 33 (of 90), and 1,613 students completed the entire survey to the end. Per IBHE direction, only students who completed at least through Question 33 of the base survey were considered completed (respondents) and used in the data set that was submitted to IBHE (n = 1,645).

Also per IBHE direction, if a survey question and answer had fewer than 20 responses, "NR" (Not Reported) was used to protect student privacy and anonymity.

Key Insights and Resulting University Commitments

The following are select insights learned from the data results from SPEAK UP 2025 and SPEAK UP 2024. The OEC and other campus partners, including but not limited to the Office of the Dean of Students and Wellness Center Health Promotion team, will continue to work with SPEAK UP survey data to inform and enhance Loyola's prevention of and response to sexual misconduct.

1. Student Perceptions of Safety, Agency, and Available Resources

A large majority of students who participated in the survey reported that they feel safe on campus, with 80.0% of respondents agreeing or strongly agreeing with the statement, "I feel safe on campus at Loyola." This is up from 74.0% of students responding to the same question last year.

Respondents also largely responded that they were familiar with the Wellness Center. With 83.8% of students reporting that they were "aware of the function of Loyola's safety, health, and wellness services". This number has increased since last year's survey where 79.7% of students reported being familiar with the Wellness Center. On the other hand, students knowledge of Loyola's Office for Equity & Compliance decreased year over year. In 2024, 62.5% of students reported that they were "aware of the function of Loyola's Title IX or other institutional office that addresses formal reports", while this year only 57.3% of students reported being aware of the same. This data suggests that Loyola's investments in advocacy-centered communication from the Wellness Center continues to be highly effective, and that a different outreach strategy may be warranted for communications regarding reporting sexual misconduct.

Loyola University Chicago is committed to engaging in further qualitative inquiry to better understand what factors are inhibiting students' sense of safety regarding sexual misconduct. Additionally, the OEC is committed to working with students, student organizations, and key campus partners (such as the Health Promotion team in the Wellness Center) to invite the reporting of sexual misconduct, as well as to promote the availability of supportive resources and opportunities for student partnership.

2. Student Understanding of Consent

Loyola chose to include an optional module in the survey to assess students' self-reported understanding of consent. The results of this module show that knowledge regarding what a consensual relationship should look like continues to be high year-over-year. For example, 85.2% of respondents agreed or strongly agreed that "consent must be given at each step in a sexual encounter," and 94.3% of respondents disagreed or strongly disagreed with the statement, "If you and your partner are both drunk, you don't have to worry about consent." The University considers these findings to be a strong indicator of student confidence in their knowledge of consent.

However, while knowledge of what a consensual relationship should look like is an excellent foundation, there can be some discrepancy between knowing what consent should entail and having the skills and commitment to actually obtain and/or communicate consent in all sexual interactions.

While the survey instrument is limited in its ability to accurately measure whether respondents' purported knowledge of consent actually aligns with their actions in sexual situations, Loyola is committed to enhancing opportunities for skill-based prevention and educational programming to encourage students to apply their knowledge of consent in their personal relationships and sexual interactions.

3. Incidence of Behaviors Associated with Sexual Misconduct

In 2024, the survey did not ask students directly whether they had experienced sexual and gender discrimination, stalking, dating and domestic violence, or sexual violence. Instead, the 2024 survey asked whether students experienced specific behaviors that could be indicative of one of those violations. In the 2025 survey, Loyola added questions that more directly identified the definitions of sexual harassment, stalking, dating and domestic violence, and sexual violence, and asked students specifically whether in the last 12 months they had experienced behavior that would meet those definitions. Because these questions were added in 2025, prior comparative data are not available. However, these questions will be included in the SPEAK UP Survey going forward, for year-over-year comparisons.

In the 2025 Survey, 8.7% of respondents reported that they had experienced sexual and gender harassment in the last 12 months, 3.8% reported that they had experienced stalking, 3.8% reported that they had experienced dating and domestic violence, and 3.4% reported that they had experienced sexual violence. These numbers are below national averages for college students' experiences of sexual and gender harassment, stalking, dating and domestic violence, and sexual violence.[2]

Any amount of sexual misconduct is unacceptable in our community. Loyola is committed to working with our student body to further reduce these incident rates. Additionally, Loyola is committed to continuing to work collaboratively across various campus offices to further track, analyze, and explore the data set to identify and implement effective and targeted methods to reduce the incidence of sexual misconduct across all intersectional demographics.

4. Perceptions of Peer and Institutional Responses

Around 30% of respondents reported that they had received either written or verbal information from Loyola that included the definitions of types of sexual misconduct, told them how to report an incident of sexual misconduct, and included information regarding Title IX protections against sexual misconduct. This is down from 50% of respondents acknowledging receipt of information last year. Loyola takes seriously our responsibility and commitment to inform students about their civil rights and provide resources related to those rights. All Loyola students are required to take a yearly training related to sexual misconduct that provides them with information regarding Title IX protections. However, this data point again suggests that a different outreach strategy may be warranted for communications related to reporting sexual misconduct.

Loyola takes seriously our responsibility and commitment to responding to reports and complaints of sexual misconduct, whether it occurs within or outside of our University community. The University must be aware of and seek to overcome any barriers to reporting. While the data suggests overall that most students would feel supported by their peers and are generally aware of their rights and ability to report sexual misconduct to the University, the data also suggests that there is room for improvement in the dissemination of information proactively to mitigate certain barriers to reporting (such as not knowing how to report or fear of retaliation).

Loyola is committed to continuing our ongoing efforts to communicate proactively about students' rights, responsibilities, and resources related to sexual misconduct; to conducting further qualitative inquiry to better understand and overcome all barriers to reporting; and to enhancing communications about student protections against retaliation.

Conclusion and Acknowledgements

The SPEAK UP Survey is only one part of Loyola's robust system of preventing and responding to sexual misconduct in our campus community. The data collected provides a limited but valuable window into the perceptions and experiences of students. The data collected during the 2024-2025 academic year builds upon the results from the inaugural year (2023-2024), and over time this SPEAK UP initiative will offer even more insights for the University to better understand challenges and opportunities in the area of sexual violence prevention.

The OEC, on behalf of Loyola University Chicago, sincerely thanks all our students who took the time to complete the SPEAK UP Survey. We also thank the Office of Institutional Research and Analysis (formerly the Office of Institutional Effectiveness), Wellness Center, Division of Student Development, Office of Institutional Diversity, Equity, and Inclusion, University Marketing and Communications, Campus Safety, and Student Academic Services, all of whom have been partners in developing, promoting, administering, and analyzing the results of the SPEAK UP Survey initiative.

It is our hope and commitment that the practice of administering and analyzing these biannual surveys, along with other climate survey initiatives and qualitative discussions with students, will continue to help make our campuses safer and more equitable for all Loyola students.

Appendix A: SPEAK UP Survey Data

Results are inclusive of all survey responses (n = 1,690). However, percentages are based on the number of responses to each individual question, after removing cases where key data/responses were missing. Where a question/answer was fewer than 20, the abbreviation "NR" (Not Reported) is used to protect student privacy and anonymity.

Appendix B: Resources

Loyola acknowledges that completing the SPEAK UP survey may elicit strong feelings and/or bring up past negative experiences. As such, the survey instrument provided the following resource information on every survey page and/or at the conclusion of the survey:

- For life-threatening or severe emergencies, call 911.
- For urgent but non-life-threatening mental health needs, call 773-508-2530, and select option 3. Depending on the time of day, you will be instructed to leave a message or be connect with a mental health provider. If instructed to leave a message, a mental health provider will call you back within 30 minutes.
- To speak with a trauma-informed, sexual assault advocate through Loyola's Wellness Center, contact "The Line" at 773-494-3810. The Line is available Monday-Friday, 8:30am-5pm and 24 hours on weekends when classes are in session. For more information about this confidential resource, visit The Advocacy Line.
- For 24/7 support outside Loyola:
    - You can call 312-926-8100 for the Northwestern Memorial Hospital Crisis Line, or 988 for confidential support from the National Suicide Prevention Lifeline.
    - You may also text the Crisis Text Line at 741741 to communicate with a trained crisis counselor.
- For more information, visit about crisis resources, visit Emergency/Crisis Care.

Additionally, students are reminded that Loyola's Comprehensive Policy and Procedures for Addressing Discrimination, Sexual Misconduct, and Retaliation (Comprehensive Policy) contains information about the University's standards for behavior, rights and resources, and applicable procedures related to sexual misconduct, and can always be accessed at LUC.edu/comprehensivepolicy. Additional information can also be found at the OEC website, LUC.edu/equity.
