It is hard to believe that the Holiday season is already creeping up on us. Before you know it, many of you will be heading back home for Thanksgiving and enjoying time with your friends and family. It is important to note that while going home is a great time to spend time with the ones you love, that the semester comes to an end only two weeks after we return from break, and then... Finals! That being said, Thanksgiving break is a great time to start studying for your final exams and writing those final papers. As the semester comes to a close, it is also important to check up on yourself and evaluate where you are academically. Make sure your grades are where you want them to be, and to study accordingly.

TIP OF THE WEEK

be heading back home for Thanksgiving and enjoying time with your friends and family. It is important to note that while going home is a great time to spend time with the ones you love, that the semester comes to an end only two weeks after we return from break, and then... Finals! That being said, Thanksgiving break is a great time to start studying for your final exams and writing those final papers. As the semester comes to a close, it is also important to check up on yourself and evaluate where you are academically. Make sure your grades are where you want them to be, and to study accordingly. I can say from experience that waiting until the last minute and cramming for that big final does not pay off, so use your time wisely and prepare. Make sure that as you begin to study that you don’t forget to take care of yourself, this means eating and sleeping right! The last thing you want is to fall asleep during your exam, or worse, sleep through it! Eating is also very important for success in finals, this means eating a good breakfast every day and making sure to stay healthy. Enjoy your first holiday break at home and keep your eye on the prize! The semester is almost over.
