

PhD in Nursing

Loyola's PhD in Nursing program prepares nurse scholars to improve human health through the development and expansion of knowledge.

Eligibility

BSN or MSN degree ✓
An Illinois RN license ✓

Learn more
LUC.edu/nursing

6-8 years

Completion time, full- or part-time (depends on your degree level when you begin, i.e.: BSN or MSN)

Hybrid format

Courses and hands-on experience

Grow your expertise

- Develop skills and fluency in research methods, statistical analysis, and teaching ✓
- Learn to incorporate social, cultural, political, economic, and ethical considerations into nursing scholarship and practice ✓
- Analyze and critique theory and research studies ✓
- Construct research questions to address gaps in professional nursing knowledge ✓
- Design and conduct research studies that examine issues impacting the nursing profession ✓
- Dissertation required ✓*

After you graduate

Participate in the international community of scholars to further expand nursing and healthcare knowledge.

Assume leadership roles in nursing research, education, practice, policy development, and/or administration.

Scan me for more information

Contact us: gpem@luc.edu or 312.915.7900

Loyola University Chicago is an equal opportunity educator/employer.
Read our full non-discrimination policy at <https://www.LUC.edu/nondiscrimination.shtml>.

Preparing people to lead extraordinary lives