Porvenir, Texas

A century ago, vigilantes and Texas Rangers killed hundreds of Latinos. In recent years, descendants of the slain and scholars have for the first time secured historical markers and other recognition of this state-sanctioned racial violence. What are the stakes of remembering these atrocities in another era of heightened border tensions and violence? Join Loyola historian Benjamin Johnson for a discussion of a recent documentary on the subject.

Tuesday, Oct 29, 5–7 PM
Crown Center 141
Please contact Dr. Johnson (bjohnson25@luc.edu) with any questions