Catholic school standards released

Loyola’s Center for Catholic School Effectiveness, housed within the School of Education, has released the first National Standards and Benchmarks for Effective Catholic Elementary and Secondary Schools, in collaboration with the Roche Center for Catholic Education (Boston College) and the National Catholic Educational Association. The landmark document offers critical school effectiveness standards to more than 7,000 schools across the country. View the standards and benchmarks online.

Cuneo Hall opens this summer

Cuneo Hall officially opens its doors this summer to host orientation sessions for the Class of 2016. The four-story building, located adjacent to the East Quad, sets the standard for the level of energy-efficiency in the University’s capital projects.

With its LEED-Gold certification, Cuneo will use about 60 percent less energy than a standard academic facility. The building has a thermally broken exterior and natural ventilation component, which allows occupants to turn off fans and cooling systems, operating the building naturally with no energy, during fair-weather months.

Each classroom has a user interface that alerts occupants when the building is in natural ventilation mode. “Our hope is that whenever people see this indicator light, they will open up the windows,” says Kana Wibbenmeyer, assistant VP for facilities. “If everyone does that, it will only improve the amount of air flow through the building.”

Cuneo features 18 classrooms and office space on the fourth floor, which will be the new home of the Centers of Excellence. Watch LUC.edu/insideloyola for information related to open houses.

OTHER PROJECTS AT LAKE SHORE CAMPUS

New student center • Due to construction of an underground service tunnel linking the new center to the Centennial Forum Student Union, the pathway at the University’s gated west entrance will close and foot traffic will be redirected to Loyola Avenue.

Mundelein Center • No classes in Mundelein during summer 2012.

Madonna della Strada Chapel • The chapel garden construction will continue along the lakefront; it is scheduled to reopen in August.

New residence halls • Three residence halls are set to open in August 2012: Bel-larmine Hall, Messina Hall, and Marquette South.

Loyola, Harvard join forces in Vietnam

Loyola’s School of Business Administration is collaborating with Harvard University faculty and staff to expand its presence in Vietnam. Harvard’s Kennedy School and Ash Center, which administers the Fulbright Economics Teaching Program, offers more than 15 years of experience in Vietnam to complement Loyola’s dedication to expanding a permanent educational center in this emerging market. Faculty and staff from both schools are cooperating on executive education programs, research projects, and MBA site-studies. As the only two American universities to make long-term commitments to Vietnam, both hope to continue to explore ways in which stakeholders of Vietnam, Loyola, and Harvard will be best served.

TO MCKEASY
What are the family requirements for working in the business? What are the family requirements for working in the business? We have finally raised that door, with the help of Loyola’s Family Business Center. Our family business policy is that there are five years of outside employment. If there is an opening, and if a family member is qualified, they aren’t given any less consideration, but they also aren’t given any less consideration.

The Family Business of Sports

Tackling the tender, often tempestuous, issues of family and business was the focus of the evening as George H. McKeasy, chairman of the Chicago Bears, Tom Ricketts, chairman of the Chicago Cubs, and Michael Alter, owner of the Chicago Sky, came together to discuss “The Family Business of Sports” at the Union League Club on April 3. The event marked the 10th chapter in the Dean’s Speaker Series hosted by Loyola’s School of Business Administration and drew a packed crowd of nearly 200. After a welcome from Dean Kathleen Getz, PhD, the event’s moderator, Keith Lambrecht, PhD, director of the Sport Management Program, led the powerhouse panel of questions.

For the class of 2012, their time studying at Loyola is coming to a close, and that means one thing: Commencement weekend. Commencement ceremonies will be May 10–12, the School of Law ceremony will be on Saturday, May 19, and the Stritch School of Medicine ceremony will be held on June 3. In addition to ceremonies held at Gentle Arena, Mundelein Auditorium, and Navy Pier Ballroom, Commencement 2012 will also be streamed online at the Loyola website.
