Dear Colleagues,

You may have seen recent news from the federal Office of Management and Budget (OMB) citing a temporary pause on federal grants. We are reviewing this information carefully and consulting various institutional leaders to better gauge the potential impact on ongoing and pending programs of research and academic operations across all our campuses.

We remain committed to Loyola's mission and Jesuit Catholic identity that, without equivocation, champions high-quality teaching, research, and service, which in turn promotes the expansion of knowledge in the service of humanity through learning, justice, and faith.

We will update you with any new substantive developments, particularly once the implications of recent communications from the new federal administration come into greater focus.

Thank you for your patience. Should you have any questions, please feel free to reach out to me at: msingh@luc.edu

Sincerely,

Meharvan (Sonny) Singh, PhD
Vice Provost for Research
Loyola University Chicago
