

New Interface for Law Library Research Guides

Loyola Law Librarians have created more than 40 research guides on topics ranging from antitrust law to trial advocacy. These guides are located on the Law Library's website at <http://lawlibguides.luc.edu>. Recently, LibGuides, the platform on which our research guides reside, got a facelift.

Now, when you visit the research guides homepage, you'll see all guides listed, by default, in alphabetical order. Using the Display drop-down, you can view all guides alphabetically, by popularity or most recent.

Finally, the link for the Law Library's A-Z list of databases has moved. You can access the list directly via a link on the Law Library homepage or via the link in the right-hand column of the research guide homepage. You will notice that the A-Z list now provides additional search capabilities, including searching for electronic resources by subject, by keyword, or by vendor.
