LOYOLA CONSUMER LAW REVIEW

Volume 24
Number 4

2012 SYMPOSIUM
THE CONTINUING EFFECTS OF THE MORTGAGE CRISIS ON CONSUMERS

KEYNOTE SPEECH

The Subprime Mortgage Mess: A Chicago Perspective
Daniel Lindsey .................................................................................................................. 455

FEATURE ARTICLES

Losing the Paper – Mortgage Assignments, Note Transfers and Consumer Protection
Alan M. White ........................................................................................................... 468

Why Mortgage "Formalities" Matter
David A. Dana ........................................................................................................... 505

High-Interest Loans and Class: Do Payday and Title Loans Really Serve the Middle Class?
Nathalie Martin & Ernesto Longa ........................................................................... 524

Toward a More Equitable Balance: Homeowner and Purchaser Tensions in Non-Judicial Foreclosure States
Elizabeth Renuart .................................................................................................. 562

The Fair Debt Collection Practices Act Meets Arbitration: Non-Parties and Arbitration
Richard M. Alderman ............................................................................................ 586

Putting Some Teeth in TILA: From Disclosure to Substantive Regulation in the Mortgage Reform and Anti-Predatory Lending Act of 2010
Dee Pridgen .............................................................................................................. 615