GENERAL INFORMATION ABOUT THE MEETING

Appropriate Conduct at the MMLA Convention: The MMLA Convention depends upon all participants (panelists, attendees, staff) conducting themselves in a professional manner. We are committed to ensuring a safe, welcoming, non-discriminatory environment for all participants. Additional details can be found on our website at: https://www.luc.edu/mmla/convention/generalinformation/

Pre-registration and Registration. The pre-registration fees for forms received by October 15, 2019 are as follows: regular registration at $105, and special registration (for students, retired, part-time, and unemployed persons only) at $55. Any forms that arrive after the October 15 deadline will be assessed a late registration premium as follows: regular registration at $160; special registration (for students, retired, part-time, and unemployed persons only) at $80. Because all persons listed in the program book are required to register, identification badges will be available at the MMLA’s Registration Desk, located on the Third floor of the hotel. Hours are as follows: 8:00 a.m. to 5:15 p.m. on Thursday; 8:00 a.m. to 5:15 p.m. on Friday; 8:00 a.m. to 4:00 p.m. on Saturday. Payment of the registration fee does not constitute payment for membership in the Association. Cash and checks are accepted. We are unable to accept credit cards on site.

Location of Meeting Rooms. All regularly scheduled meetings and events will be held on the Third and Fourth floor of the Hilton Chicago. Please refer to the hotel floor plans in this program book.

Associated Organizations. Because of shared disciplinary interests, MMLA annually provides time and meeting space during its convention for the meeting of other organizations referred to in the program as “Associated Organizations.” These meetings are open to all who are registered for the MMLA Convention and display an identification badge. Associated meetings will be held this year by the following organizations: Margaret Atwood Society, Dickens Society, International TS Elliot Society, International Harold Pinter Society, Henry James Society,

Child Care. Please contact the Hilton to speak to the concierge, who can supply a list of bonded child-care providers.

Job Interviews. Department chairs and job applicants are welcome to use the meeting as a convenient occasion for scheduling interviews, but the Association suggests that candidates and school representatives make plans in advance by exchanging information and setting up appointments through correspondence. (The MMLA does not have sufficient administrative personnel to provide a faculty exchange system at the convention.)

Governance of Sections. The Permanent Sections of the MMLA are governed according to the “Revised Guidelines.” In brief, the secretary of each section, to be elected at the Annual Convention, becomes its chair the next year. In order to establish a new permanent section of the MMLA Annual Convention, members should propose a forum for approval by the Program Committee. After three consecutive years of successful meetings of the forum, a petition for permanent status should be sent to the MMLA Office for recommendation by the Program Committee and a decision by the Executive Committee. The petition should include a statement of purpose and the signatures of at least twenty current MMLA members.

Americans with Disabilities Act: Those registrants who require special accommodations are welcome to indicate their needs in the spaces provided on the registration form. Every effort will be made to accommodate registrants with ADA-related needs.

Future Conventions of the MMLA:
- 2020: Hilton City Center, Milwaukee, WI (November 5-8)
- 2021: Westin Cleveland Hotel Downtown, Cleveland, OH (November 4-7)
- 2022: Hyatt Regency Minneapolis, Minneapolis, MN (November 16-20)
- 2023: Hyatt Regency Cincinnati, Cincinnati, OH (November 2-5)

2020 Proposed Sessions: Any MMLA member may propose a topic for a special session at the 2020 Annual Convention by emailing us at mmla@luc.edu. The deadline for submission of special session topics or call for papers for the 2020 Annual Convention is February 15, 2020. In making its selection, the MMLA Program Committee will take the following into account: thoroughness of proposal, originality of contribution, and balance and diversity of the total Annual Convention program. Availability of meeting space will determine the total number of proposals that can be included.

Building and Sustaining Leadership in English Departments

Organized by the Modern Language Association

2:30 PM to 3:45 PM in the Williford A Room

This professional development workshop will address the variety of opportunities for leadership in English Departments: how and why faculty might prepare themselves for these leadership roles, and how English prepares individuals to lead across campus. We will focus on the role of department chair/head, but also consider the roles of director of undergraduate/graduate study, advising coordinator, first-year writing programs coordinator, program director, and more, as well as campus roles like senate chair, general education director, and first-year experience coordinator. What unique qualities do English faculty members bring to these roles? What challenges in English demand certain types of leadership? What opportunities are there in English that strong leadership can help realize?

Keynote Address

Dr. Jerrold E. Hogle

“The Gothic and the Doppelgänger: A Symbiotic Relationship”

Although the marriage of the Doppelgänger as an especially symbolic character and the Gothic as an avowedly hybrid kind of fiction became powerfully complete by the time of E.T.A Hoffman’s The Devil’s Elixer (1815) and Mary Shelley's Frankenstein (1818), it would seem that they were on separate trajectories for most of the later eighteenth century. Jean Paul Richter's famous first use -- and pointed definition -- of Doppelgänger in his novel Siebenkäs (1796-97) is accompanied by very few established Gothic elements, and Horace Walpole's The Castle of Otranto (1764-65), the first piece of fiction to call itself "Gothic," has never been treated as containing Doppelgänger figures. The same can be said of the famous Gothic successors to Walpole in the England of 1790s, even in Matthew Lewis's lurid use of the German Gothic in his English novel The Monk (1796). But this talk argues that the Doppelgänger figure, both as Jean Paul defined it and as it came more fully into its symbolic possibilities in the nineteenth century, was really gestated by the specifically "Gothic" kind of symbol-making that Otranto and his successors produced by combining elements of "ancient" (including medieval) and "modern” (Fielding- and Smollett-esque)” romance.” The very "nature" of the Doppelganger that grew out of Gothic modes of characterization, in fact, gained its ongoing suggestiveness (as well as its attractiveness for Freudian psychoanalysis) precisely from the contradictions in its Walpolean foundations, so much so that it is these conflicted Gothic roots that enable the many layers that the Doppelgänger is able to manifest in the most famous examples of its use in literature of the nineteenth century (including, but by no means limited to, the Strange Case of Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde in 1886). It turns out that the relationship between the Gothic and the Doppelgänger is even more symbiotic from the beginning than we have understood up to now.

Jerrold E. (Jerry) Hogle, whose Ph.D. is from Harvard University (where he won the Howard Mumford Jones Thesis Prize), is Professor Emeritus of English and University Distinguished Professor at the University of Arizona. The winner of Guggenheim, Mellon, and other fellowships for research and the Distinguished Scholar Award of the Keats-Shelley Association of America, he has published extensively (books, essays, and reviews) on English Romantic literature, literary and cultural theory, and the many different forms of the Gothic. His books include, among others, Shelley’s Process from the Oxford UP, The Undergrounds of The Phantom of the Opera from Palgrave Macmillan, and The Cambridge Companion to Gothic Fiction from the Cambridge UP, which has recently been succeeded by The Cambridge Companion to the Modern Gothic and by The Gothic and Theory, co-edited with Robert Miles, in the Edinburgh UP Companions to the Gothic series.

   This professional development workshop will address the variety of opportunities for leadership in English Departments: how and why faculty might prepare themselves for these leadership roles, and how English prepares individuals to lead across campus. We will focus on the role of department chair/head, but also consider the roles of director of undergraduate/graduate study, advising coordinator, first-year writing programs coordinator, program director, and more, as well as campus roles like senate chair, general education director, and first-year experience coordinator. What unique qualities do English faculty members bring to these roles? What challenges in English demand certain types of leadership? What opportunities are there in English that strong leadership can help realize?

   “The Gothic and the Doppelgänger: A Symbiotic Relationship"

   Friday 5:30 pm to 6:30 pm in Williford A to C

Although the marriage of the Doppelgänger as an especially symbolic character and the Gothic as an avowedly hybrid kind of fiction became powerfully complete by the time of E.T.A Hoffman’s The Devil’s Elixer (1815) and Mary Shelley’s Frankenstein (1818), it would seem that they were on separate trajectories for most of the later eighteenth century. Jean Paul Richter’s famous first use -- and pointed definition -- of Doppelgänger in his novel Siebenkäs (1796-97) is accompanied by very few established Gothic elements, and Horace Walpole’s The Castle of Otranto (1764-65), the first piece of fiction to call itself "Gothic," has never been treated as containing Doppelgänger figures. The same can be said of the famous Gothic successors to Walpole in the England of 1790s, even in Matthew Lewis’s lurid use of the German Gothic in his English novel The Monk (1796). But this talk argues that the Doppelgänger figure, both as Jean Paul defined it and as it came more fully into its symbolic possibilities in the nineteenth century, was really gestated by the specifically "Gothic" kind of symbol-making that Otranto and his successors produced by combining elements of "ancient" (including medieval) and "modern" (Fielding- and Smollett-esque)” romance.” The very "nature" of the Doppelganger that grew out of Gothic modes of characterization, in fact, gained its ongoing suggestiveness (as well as its attractiveness for Freudian psychoanalysis) precisely from the contradictions in its Walpolean foundations, so much so that it is these conflicted Gothic roots that enable the many layers that the Doppelgänger is able to manifest in the most famous examples of its use in literature of the nineteenth century (including, but by no means limited to, the Strange Case of Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde in 1886). It turns out that the relationship between the Gothic and the Doppelgänger is even more symbiotic from the beginning than we have understood up to now.

Jerrold E. (Jerry) Hogle, whose Ph.D. is from Harvard University (where he won the Howard Mumford Jones Thesis Prize), is Professor Emeritus of English and University Distinguished Professor at the University of Arizona. The winner of Guggenheim, Mellon, and other fellowships for research and the Distinguished Scholar Award of the Keats-Shelley Association of America, he has published extensively (books, essays, and reviews) on English Romantic literature, literary and cultural theory, and the many different forms of the Gothic. His books include, among others, Shelley’s Process from the Oxford UP, The Undergrounds of The Phantom of the Opera from Palgrave Macmillan, and The Cambridge Companion to Gothic Fiction from the Cambridge UP, which has recently been succeeded by The Cambridge Companion to the Modern Gothic and by The Gothic and Theory, co-edited with Robert Miles, in the Edinburgh UP Companions to the Gothic series.
