Description:

This course explores the richness of Vietnam's long literary journey, from the pre-modern period to the contemporary literary landscape of Vietnam. A major portion of the course, however, is allocated to the modern and contemporary period. Key issues and ruptures in Vietnamese culture and history are also introduced throughout the course to inform students' understanding and interpretation of the texts.

As indicated in the course's title, literary works taught in this course are translations, and students should be aware not only of the translational and transcultural nature of their readings, but also of the roles and the choices of the translators as they are situated within their specific contexts.

Outcome & Objectives:

Learning Outcomes

Students will develop a general understanding of the history of Vietnamese literature with an emphasis on the modern/contemporary period. They should be able to apply some literary theories in their reading and analysis of some key Vietnamese literary texts and to appreciate specific aspects of Vietnamese culture as expressed in literature. As the course ends with contemporary Vietnamese literature, students will have an overview of its long development up until present, and foresee where it is heading for in continuously changing socio-political life of Vietnam.

Objectives

Upon completion of this course, students will be able to:

1. Understand basic theories of cultural studies, literary criticism (including sociological and anthropological approaches);
2. Critically apply the theories into their analysis of socio-cultural issues in general, and of contemporary Vietnam's subjects in particular;
3. Recognize the universality and local characteristics of a number of problems in regional and global contexts;
4. Appreciate cultural diversity and different cultural values practiced by various nations;
5. Avoid stereotypical prejudices, and recognize the importance of cultural mutual understanding in an interconnected world;
6. Work with people from diverse cultural backgrounds based on their appreciation and respect of those people's cultures.

Conceptual Framework:

Conceptual Framework

As an interdisciplinary field, cultural studies employs a variety of approaches drawn from various disciplines, such as sociology, anthropology, history, or literature. It concentrates on how culture is constructed and organized through the negotiation between the authority and the public; it also examines how "literature" evolves and changes over time.

Diversity

In-class discussions allow the student to compare and contrast her personal opinion/thought with those of her classmates. Additionally, as the student is supposed to hold a small weekly discussion with her Vietnamese partner on a course-related subject of her choice, she will have more chances to be exposed to the locals' viewpoints, and consequently will better understand the chosen subject. All these mutual learning environments ultimately help to strengthen critical and multidimensional thinking.

Academic Honesty

Academic honesty demands that the pursuit of knowledge in the university community be carried out with sincerity and integrity. For additional academic policies and procedures refer to: http://www.luc.edu/education/academics_policies_main.shtml

Accessibility

Students who have disabilities should refer to the University policy on accommodations and participation in courses available at: <http://www.luc.edu/sswd/>.

If you believe you are subject to such bias, you should notify the Bias Response Team at this link: <http://webapps.luc.edu/biasreporting/>.

Reading Materials:

An electronic course reader will be delivered to students via email. Students should have e-book devices or computers to read it. Additionally, a hardcopy of the reader will also be provided.

Additional Readings

The instructor may add additional readings not listed in this syllabus during the course of the semester.

Requirements & Expectations:

Copyright

The Copyright Act requires that people who use or reference the work of others must follow a set of guidelines designed to protect authors' rights. The safest practice is to remember (1) to refrain from distributing works used in class (whether distributed by the professor or used for research) that are copyright protected and (2) that any research or creative work should be cited according to the conventions of your discipline. These same rules apply to students use and dissemination of materials associated with the course. For LUC's copyright resources check online:

<http://www.luc.edu/copyright/highlights.shtml>

Preparation

Preparation through completion of each week's readings as well as thoughtful reflections on the topics are critical not only for each individual's intellectual development, but the course's collective development as well. This is particularly critical in an online, asynchronous learning environment.

Readings have been purposefully selected for their relevance to the given topic and contribution to the overall literature. Rather than assigning a bulk of reading, the philosophy employed in this course design is to carefully select significant and important core readings.

Time should be directed towards examining themes across reading and conducting critical analysis of content and its application in the context of higher education. Students are encouraged to consider this as they read assigned material.

Participation

To achieve full benefit of participation, this course requires approximately 4 hours per week for completion of assignments. This time is mainly spent reading course materials, discussing with Vietnamese student partners, and completing assignments. Inability to meet this time requirement will reduce a participant's benefit from the course, or, in some cases, fulfillment of assignments needed to complete and receive credit for the course. It is important to note that how a student participates is often a function of their particular learning style. Therefore, participation is less about the frequency with which a student engages and more about the quality of the contributions and evaluation of all contributions will reflect this.

For the purposes of this course, participation is valued in which students build upon one another's comments, provide meaningful connections to practice, share critical observations and insights on a topic, and generally increase the complexity and richness of the discussion. Students are also encouraged to pose questions to one another. A portion of the final grade is dedicated to participation and a rubric is provided that outlines how this will be assessed.

EVALUATIVE DIMENSION	"A" GRADE	"B" GRADE	"C" GRADE	"D/F" GRADE
QUALITY OF CONTRIBUTIONS	Contributions are relevant and routinely integrate course reading and life experiences into the discussion; Arguments are evidenced-based and supported through course content and life experiences	Contributions lean more toward either course readings or life experiences, but are relevant to the conversation; Arguments are generally evidence-based	Contributions are not relevant to the conversation and rarely incorporate course readings; Contributions betray a lack of preparation; Arguments are rarely evidence-based	No or minimal contributions or arguments are offered
SIGNIFICANCE OF CONTRIBUTIONS	Contributions add complexity to the conversation and support or build off of others' contributions	Contributions are generally substantive, but occasionally indicate a lack of attention to what others have shared	Contributions repeat what others have shared and thus do not advance the conversation	No or minimal contributions are offered
GENERAL ENGAGEMENT	Regularly contributes to the class; Routinely engaged with course activities and / or discussions	Contributions meet minimal expectations; Does not consistently engage in activities and/ or discussions	Minimal contributions are offered; disengaged from activities and/ or discussions; shifts to off-topic material	No contributions are offered
GATE-KEEPING	Does not dominate the discussion; Regularly encourages the participation of others by posing questions or asking for other students' thoughts	Student occasionally encourages the participation of others; recognizes the contributions of others	Dominates the conversation; Does not engage other students; directs majority of comments to the instructor	No or minimal contributions
ATTENDING SKILLS	Is considerate of appropriately expressed feelings and opinions of others; Actively supports peers' learning processes	Generally considerate of appropriately expressed feelings and opinions of others; generally supports peers' learning processes	Is dismissive of others' feelings and opinions; Does not actively support peers' learning processes	Inconsiderate of others' feelings and opinions; Does not actively support others' learning
TIMELINESS	Consistently submits material and engages in course requirements by specified times	Generally submits materials by the specified times	Demonstrates a pattern of missing course requirement deadlines	Consistently misses course requirement deadlines

Civil Discourse

Students are expected to engage in social perspective-taking, a skill that requires both empathy and the ability to acknowledge multiple points of view. Any interaction in the online course should respect the rights of others by (1) allowing all classmates the right to voice their opinions without fear of ridicule, and (2) not using profanity or making objectionable (e.g., gendered, racial or ethnic) comments, especially comments directed at a classmate. Students should feel comfortable voicing their opinions, but they must also be prepared to assume responsibility for the impact that contributions may have on others.

APA Style/ Writing

The quality of writing is also of high importance. All papers should be submitted in APA 6th Edition format. Should papers have significant errors in APA formatting, they will not be accepted as complete.

Assignments:

Weekly Responses: (due weekly 10:00 PM Fridays)

Students write and submit weekly responses on Sakai, due every 10:00 PM on Fridays. Responses may focus on ONE of the followings:

- Most interesting issues students found from the selection
- Discussions of what students learnt from the reading about Vietnamese literature, culture, or history
- Puzzling problem(s) from the reading, or question(s) to discuss with the class
- Preliminary interpretation of a selected literary work from the reading

FINAL PAPER: (due on final day of class)

This will be a close reading of a literary work by a Vietnamese writer. It can be a short story, a group of poems, a novel, or a memoir. Students are encouraged to investigate and choose a work most interesting to them. Their analysis should be from an interdisciplinary perspective. More importantly, students should incorporate their Vietnam experience into their reading/analysis of the selected works. The final paper should be 10 pages in length.

Students should browse over the course's contents and figure out what they are interested in the most. Starting from Session 7 students should submit their potential paper topic(s) with the instructor for approval. Paper outline and references are due during Session 10.

Assignments are due at the time specified in the course syllabus and should be submitted according to the directions provided. Any weekly response submitted after the deadline is not accepted. No extension will be granted. Note that the instructor will not hunt down missing assignments and it is your responsibility to ensure that they are turned in by the stated deadlines.

The instructor will closely monitor all your weekly responses. Your response will be graded as "PASS" or "FAIL" depending on whether if they meet the requirements of the assignments. Should a response be graded as "FAIL", the instructor will contact you via email with explanations and suggestions. It is the student's responsibility to ensure that the feedback provided for a response is integrated into the next one. If problems repeatedly appear across assignments, the percentage of point deduction will be increased. The instructor will synthesize outstanding points made in the responses, sort out noteworthy questions raised in the course's electronic forum, and present/answer them in class.

For the final paper's topic proposal and the detailed outline, students will be provided substantial feedback regarding content, structure, and grammar/APA style. NOTE: To fully develop their argument, students may exceed the suggested length of the paper. Additionally, the suggested length does not include the title page or reference pages.

Participation

Attendance will be taken for every single class. Regular attendance is crucial; bad attendance will result in a lower grade. Participation in class discussions is crucial and counted toward the final grade.

Students may use laptops or tablets in class to take notes. However, any other use of these devices and the use of cell phones are strictly prohibited. Violating this policy will negatively impact the student's class participation (see also below).

Evaluation & Grading:

Attendance and class participation: 20%

Weekly responses: 30%

Final Paper: 50%

Assignments in this course will be graded according to the rubric provided. Note that if an assignment fails to follow the instructions provided a grade of zero will be assigned.
