Course Description:

This course will give you the basis to understand which is the impact of human activities on our planet and which are the main actions that policy makers, stakeholders and citizens should carry out to avoid the decline and deterioration of our ecosystems with dramatic consequences also for human being.

We will undertake a science-policy journey through the knowledge of the international strategies for sustainable development, the current European green deal policies and the global and local actions needed to fight the climate changes and chemical pollution.

The course will cover basic topics such as the protection of water resources (the most precious and limited resource) and our oceans, the importance of the protection of our ecosystems, the impact of chemical pollution on the environment and in which way this affects human health, the importance of a sustainable agriculture. A study visit will be also scheduled and a practical activity about sustainability.

Learning Outcomes

On completion of the course students should be able to:

- Develop the basic concepts of the environmental sustainability
- Determine which are the main anthropogenic impacts on the planet
- Assess the risks for ecosystems and human health
- Identify the actions that policy makers, stakeholders and citizens should put in place
- Improve awareness and communication skills related to the environmental sustainability

Required Text / Materials

Assigned readings will be posted on Sakai

Assigned readings will be found on various scientific and policy publications, printed papers/slides

Each week's readings must be completed before coming to class

Attendance Policy

In accordance with the JFRC mission to promote a higher level of academic rigor, all courses adhere to the following absence policy. Prompt attendance, preparation and active participation in course discussions are expected from every student.

- For all classes meeting once a week, students cannot incur more than one unexcused absence.

This course meets 1 a week, thus a total of 1 unexcused absence(s) will be permitted. Unexcused absences beyond these will result in 1% lowering of the final course grade, for every absence after the “approved limit.” The collective health of the JFRC is everyone’s responsibility. DO NOT ATTEND CLASS IF YOU ARE ILL.

Assessment Components

• Participation (including assignments)	25%
• Midterm Exam	20%
• Group Works	15 %
• Multimedia project	15%
• Final Exam	25%

Participation

Participation and attendance are key aspects of this course. Students must be active in participation and be prepared about the readings assigned along the course. They also should demonstrate to have passion and awareness towards this topic and should also contribute to stimulate the discussions respecting the different opinions of the other students.

Midterm Exam

The midterm exam is a fundamental moment along the course and will be based on arguments related to the covered topics. Students will have 2 hours to complete the exam.

Group Works

We will create groups of 4-5 students that will discuss important environmental topics and the way to solve them: we will organize a team debate in which the students will play different roles (Citizen, Researcher, Policy Maker, Farmer/Industrial, Syndicate of workers) and will try to solve relevant questions (e.g. the effect on environment of a new industrial installation near a city).

Multimedia Project

Along the course students will be invited to write a project on a specific argument of the course, this project should include original pictures taken by the students and an optional video can be integrated.

Final Exam

The final exam will be based on the topics presented and discussed throughout the course. Students will have 2 hours to complete the exam.
