

LOYOLA

MOVE TO THE FRONT OF THE CLASS

Loyola University Chicago's College of Arts and Sciences offers top-ranked, convenient MS programs for motivated professionals seeking to advance their technology careers.

Graduate Pathway: Masters in Computer Science, Information Technology or Software Engineering
Programs available	For a full list of programs, visit this link: http://www.luc.edu/cs/academics/
Suggested undergraduate GPA	Information Technology graduate degree: 2.7 cumulative GPA Software Engineering and Computer Science graduate degrees: 3.0 cumulative GPA
Exam required	GRE scores are not required for admission.
Transcripts	Loyola students do not need to submit official transcripts.
Statement of purpose	This is an informal document to assist in advising.
Recommendation letters	Two letters are required. One of the two letters must be from one of your Loyola IT/CS instructors.
Other requirements	Students are admitted on a rolling basis. It is recommended that students submit all materials at least two weeks before registration opens each semester. All students must have a bachelor's degree before starting the graduate program.
Pre-requisites for all graduate programs	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • COMP 170 – Introduction to Object-Oriented Programming • COMP 271 – Data Structures: Algorithms and Applications • COMP 363 – Algorithms (Computer Science graduate degree only)
Scholarships and funding options	There is a competitive process to award teaching assistantships (TA). All students admitted are invited to apply. Deadlines to apply are October 15 th for spring admission and March 15 th for fall admission.

Apply online: gpem.luc.edu/apply. Please review your program of interest for the required supporting materials.

Learn More

Graduate & Professional Enrollment Management

(E) gradapp@luc.edu

(P) 312.915.8950

(W) LUC.edu/gpem

Preparing people to lead extraordinary lives