PROCEDURE

Home university’s program coordinator provides a draft with the rough program outline:

- Length of the program (number of days).
- Itinerary: brainstorming about venues or places to visit (museums, archaeological zones, institutions, etc.). No need to be detailed.
- Number of participants (range or approximation).
- Services to be provided by IBERO: accommodation, transportation, lectures, facilities, etc.

- Once IBERO receives the draft, the special programs office will revise the feasibility of the proposal and provides suggestions for modifications (if required).
- These suggestions will be sent to the counterpart for approval or changes.
- Once both parts agree on the program outline, IBERO will send a budget proposal.

- Once the budget is approved and the program confirmed, IBERO will issue an invoice (50% initial payment; 50% upon arrival)
- The home university’s program coordinator will provide the information of the participants and arrange the details of the program with IBERO
- On site, IBERO staff will organize and oversee the complete logistics of the program and will accompany the group during their stay in Mexico.
ADVANTAGES

Multiple services management

• IBERO arranges transportation, accommodation, meals, etc.
• No need to spread payments to different providers: IBERO will issue one invoice for the entire cost of the program and will be responsible for dealing with all service providers.

Group supervision

• IBERO staff will join the program and accompany the group to guarantee the correct execution of the itinerary.
• The staff is fluent in English and will facilitate the immersion of the group in Mexico, from the arrival gate to the end of the program.
REQUIREMENTS

• The design of a brand new program will need at least 3 months of preparation, from the first contact to the arrival date.

• The minimum of participants required by IBERO to run the program is 8 students.

• Every student must have an international medical insurance covering the complete stay in Mexico. The information of the policy shall be provided to IBERO prior to arrival.
