Biographical History

Pauline Kochanski is a photographer living and working in Chicago. She earned her bachelor's degree from Columbia College Chicago and her master's degree from De Paul University, also in Chicago. Her subjects include people, museum galleries, and interior and exterior landscapes, particularly those landscapes that are missed by the casual viewer. Pauline has also recently expanded her work to include short audio pieces based on her interactions with friends and strangers. She has displayed her work in numerous exhibitions and also teaches photography at institutions in the Chicago area.

Scope and Content

The Pauline Kochanski Papers consist of materials related to the women's liberation movement, primarily in the 1970s. All the documents are secondary source materials and include magazine articles, scholarly articles, journals, and other publications.
