Administrative History

Mundelein College was founded by the Sisters of Charity of the Blessed Virgin Mary (BVMs), in response to a call by Cardinal George Mundelein for a Catholic women's college on the North Side of Chicago. Construction of the college's iconic art deco style skyscraper began in 1929, at the start of the Great Depression. The building's design was heavily influenced by Mother Mary Isabella Kane, BVM, who oversaw every detail of the construction. With a staff of 20 BVM teachers, Mundelein opened its doors to students in the fall of 1930 as the first self-contained skyscraper college for women. The college began as a day school, serving women who lived nearby and commuted to the small campus. The college quickly expanded, purchasing surrounding lakeshore mansions to be used as space for the school and later constructing buildings for additional dormitory and office space.

For 60 years Mundelein College offered its students a comprehensive Catholic liberal arts education. The women who were educated at Mundelein came from many ethnic and socio-economic groups and were often the first females in their families to attend college. The college endeavored to provide women with an excellent, comprehensive liberal arts education in a stimulating and nurturing environment.

Mundelein pioneered such areas as credit for lifetime experience, graduate religious education for women, peace studies, graduate liberal studies, and Latina outreach. In 1974, the Weekend College opened, offering older women and men with fulltime jobs and other commitments with the opportunity to take classes exclusively on weekends. Students also had the option to live on campus on weekends in order to take full advantage of the college environment and services. The first of its kind, this residential weekend college inspired the creation of similar programs across the country.

Mundelein College served as the last private Catholic women's college in Illinois. In the 1980s, the college faced financial difficulties and declining enrollment. Under this pressure, Mundelein College affiliated with neighboring Loyola University Chicago in 1991. Sister Carolyn Farrell, BVM, became President of the college to lead Mundelein throughout the transition. Some of Mundelein's academic programs were adopted by Loyola. Loyola gained its first music program through the affiliation, and adopted Mundelein's unique Peace Studies program. The Weekend College became a part of Loyola as the Mundelein College of Loyola University Chicago. In 2003, the name was changed to the School of Professional Studies and later was renamed the School of Continuing and Professional Studies. The school continues to provide diverse course formats for adult learners including evening, weekend, and online courses.

Today, the legacy of Mundelein College can be seen in many of the programs at Loyola University Chicago. The Gannon Center for Women and Leadership, named after Ann Ida Gannon, Mundelein College's longest-serving President, was created to carry on Mundelein's heritage of fostering women leaders. It continues to do so through a variety of programs, including the Gannon Scholars Leadership Program, which engages students in the development of leadership, service, and research. The Peace Studies program at Loyola was established from the curriculum and interdisciplinary approach developed at Mundelein.

The Women and Leadership Archives, established in 1994, grew out of the need to care for the records of Mundelein College. The archives later expanded its mission to collect the papers of women's organizations and women leaders, including several Mundelein graduates. The WLA is funded jointly by the Gannon Center for Women and Leadership and Loyola University Chicago Libraries.

Scope and Content (DACS 3.1)

The paper records of Mundelein College consist of 70.5 linear feet and span the years 1900 to 2016, including some undated materials. The dates of records predate the college's active years because they include records related to Mundelein faculty and staff members or research activities. Records dated after 1991 are included in the collection because the archives continued to collect relevant materials after the college's affiliation with Loyola University Chicago. Subjects include Catholicism, higher education, women religious, women's education, Vatican II, WWII, the Civil Rights Movement, the Vietnam War, and more. Most series and subseries in the collection are arranged by date, but some are arranged alphabetically where noted.

Student academic records and transcripts from Mundelein College are held by Loyola University's Office of Registration and Records and are not in this collection. Other record formats and subjects related to Mundelein College are located in separate collections at the WLA:

- Mundelein Audio Visual Collection: recordings of faculty, staff, students, visitors, and speakers.
- Mundelein College Laboratory Materials Records: materials related to the college's Psychology Department laboratories.
- Mundelein History Project: materials related to the creation of the book Mundelein Voices, a collection of historical essays about Mundelein College.
- Mundelein College Oral Histories Records: oral histories of former Mundelein College administrators, faculty, staff, and students.
- Mundelein Memorabilia Collection: three dimensional objects from the college and its faculty, staff, and students.
