Biographical History

Marjorie Tuite, O.P., (1922-1986) was born and raised in New York City. She is described in the program at her memorial service following her death on June 28, 1986 as “a leading voice for an equal role for woman in the Roman Catholic Church, an advocate for the poor and an educator on a broad range of social justice issues.” She played a “prominent role in the civil rights, peace, and women’s movements as an activist, educator, organizer and author”.

Sister Marjorie Tuite, O.P. was a member of the Dominican Sisters of St. Mary of the Springs Order in Columbus, Ohio. She made her profession in 1942. In addition to her degree from Fordham University in New York, she received a Master’s Degree in Education Theology from Manhattanville College also in New York, and a Doctor of Ministry from St. Mary of the Lake Seminary in Chicago.

For six years until 1966, she worked as an administrator at St. Vincent Ferrer High School. Between 1973 and 1981 she was a member of the faculty at the Jesuit School of Theology in Chicago. Before her tenure at the Jesuit School of Theology, she served on the staff on the National Urban Training Center and The Archdiocesan Center for Religious Education both in Chicago.

Her organizational participation strongly reflects her commitment to social justice. She was the Director of Ecumenical Action for Church Women United as well as a leader within the organization. Church Women United is an ecumenical action movement in which women from different Christian denominations work together for social justice and the dignity of woman. In addition, she was coordinator of the National Assembly of Church Women and the National Association of Religious Women (previously known as National Association of Women Religious). In 1971 she was one of the founders of NETWORK, a national Catholic justice group stressing social change through legislation. In 1982, she founded the Women’s Coalition to Stop Intervention in Central America. In addition, she served on boards of nine national peace and anti-poverty programs.

In the 1980s, before her death, she traveled extensively through Central America in a variety of capacities. She traveled to Nicaragua fourteen times meeting with government officials, grassroots leaders, Christian atheists, and women's groups throughout the country including mothers of heroes. Among other things she bore witness to the destruction of agricultural cooperatives. She traveled three times to El Salvador and in 1984 served as a delegate to the First Congress on Human Rights occurring there. Much of her efforts with regard to Central America included using the Church and other forums in the United States to voice her opposition to US policy in that region.

In 1984, she was one of 24 US nuns calling for a dialogue within the Roman Catholic Church on sensitive moral issues such as a woman's right to choose. This call for dialogue appeared in an advertisement in the New York Times and was supported by a range of groups and individuals.

Sr. Tuite, O.P. was also the recipient of several honors and awards. In 1978 she was awarded the Catholic Committee Urban Ministry Award for commitment of social justice. In 1979, she was given the US Catholic Magazine Award for work with women in the church. In 1985 she received the Boise Idaho Peace Quilt. Also in 1985 she received the Mary Rhodes Award from the Sisters of Loretto Community for her contribution to peace and justice.

After her death as the result of heart failure following surgery for a pancreatic tumor, Marjorie Tuite's remains were brought to Nicaragua to be buried at her request alongside the heroes and martyrs of Nicaragua. She received a Christian burial in Managua, Nicaragua, in March 1987.
