Biographical/Administrative History

Mollie West was born in Soklov, Poland on February 2, 1916. In 1929, at the age of 13, Mollie immigrated to the United States. West is a true example of the struggle and the achievement of women workers in the twentieth century labor union movement.

After arriving in Chicago with her family, West had to overcome the language barrier, a physical handicap, and the process of assimilation. Because of her personal situation and the political leanings of her family she found herself continually confronted with issues of social injustice. In 1934, in the midst of the Great Depression, her high school threatened to cut the extracurricular activities. West, who enrolled in music lessons through the school, responded by organizing a student strike. She and several others were arrested and placed in a juvenile home. Claiming that this was the radicalizing moment in her life, after graduation she went on to work for the Farm Equipment Workers of America, an early CIO union. There she ran the office, wrote and distributed printed materials, and advocated community members to support strikes- at any cost. A strong presence at the Memorial Day Massacre in 1937, she led the singing at the rally and that night, after the violence, spoke out publicly against the brutality. From this point, West dedicated her life to organizing the labor movement.

A member of the Communist Party from 1935-1962, unfortunately little is known about West during these years. She initially joined the Young Communist League working as a labor organizer and later served as the secretary of the Illinois Communist Party. Married on June 30, 1940, her first husband, Carl Lieber, also a Communist sympathizer, was killed during WWII in 1945. That same year West served as an American Delegate to the World Youth Congress held in London and the World Student Congress in Czechoslovakia. Forced into underground hiding from 1953-1955 with her second husband, James West, and their adopted son Steven, she finally broke ties with the Party in 1962 stating that, while she believed in their principals, it was not her life.

Afterwards, she sought out temporary employment as a proofreader while going to night school to learn the printing trade. Until that point women in the printing trades were almost unheard of. Separating from James West in 1966, and divorced in 1969, Mollie made her way as a single mother in Chicago.

From 1960-1987, as a member of the Typographical Union, West broke gender barriers. In 1973 she was the first woman elected to a union office in the Chicago Typographical Union, Local 16 (CTU) as a delegate to the International Typographical Union (ITU) Convention held in San Diego, California. She was only one of six women among the 350 attending delegates. That same year, West was the first woman to address the International Convention Union Council, the first female elected to the Executive Committee of CTU, and the first female appointed delegate to the Illinois state AFL-CIO (American Federation of Labor-Coalition of Industrial Organizations). For over thirty years she served as a delegate to the Chicago Federation of Labor as well as to the Illinois State AFL-CIO. As founding member of Chicago chapter of CLUW (Coalition of Labor Union Women), West served on the national executive board.

At the age of sixty she entered Mundelein's Weekend College earning a Bachelor's degree in labor education. Fearful of compulsory retirement at the age of sixty-five by her employer, the Daily Racing Form, she found a way to keep herself active and involved in Chicago labor education. In 1980 she organized an annual award for women labor leaders in the Chicago Federation of Labor-Industrial Union Council. After her retirement from the printing trade in 1987, she continued to promote education and recognition for labor leaders through her work at the Illinois Labor History Society as the administrative secretary and volunteer

Since that time she has been the recipient of Annual Tribute to Labor Union Women held by the CFL-IUC (1987), inducted into Chicago Women's Hall of Fame (1990), awarded the Eugene V. Debs-Norman Thomas-Michael Harrington Annual Dinner Committee Award for achievement in service to the labor movement (1993), inducted into Senior Illinois Hall of Fame, Illinois Department of Aging (1994), and named Person of the Year by the Lake County AFL-CIO (1998).

Mollie Lieber West died August 7, 2015 at the age of 99.

Scope and Content

The papers of Mollie Sheiman Lieber West span from 1916 to approximately 2000. They are organized into thematic topics, and chronologically within each series. They document her activities as a labor activist and women's rights advocate. Most of the materials are secondary sources she saved and closely reflect her work and political ideologies. The West papers include subject files, correspondence, and pamphlets. The collection only loosely refers to West's involvement with the Illinois Communist Party and the years she spent living underground during the McCarthy era through correspondence with her two husbands. It focuses primarily on her work in the labor movement and the various issues and organizations she was involved in such as CLUW, CTU, ITU, AFL-CIO, ERA, and the Illinois Labor History Society.

Biographical/Administrative History

Mollie Lieber West was born in Soklov, Poland in 1916. She immigrated to the United States in 1929. Subsequently, she was active in both Communism and the labor movement through the late 1930s-present. For more information about the biographical history of West, please consult the Mollie Lieber West, Papers finding aid.

Scope and Content

The papers found in this addendum primarily concern West's life during her time as a Communist Party member. While very few direct references are made to this political affiliation, much of the correspondence directly reflects her activities with the Party. West's first husband, Carl Lieber, is a strong presence in this collection. Many of the correspondences are letters sent between West and Lieber. He offers social commentaries/critiques of both the United States and Europe during World War II. Many of the photographs and artifacts in this collection reflect his military experience. Also included in this is correspondence between West and her second husband, James West, and information concerning West's induction into the Illinois Senior Hall of Fame.

Series 1: Biographical and Family Information, 1916-2004, n.d. Boxes 1-2

A majority of his series includes miscellaneous biographical information concerning West's life in the 1930s-1940. There are a variety of formats which include articles, artifacts, correspondence, and news clippings. Also, there is information concerning West's induction into the Illinois Senior Hall of Fame.

Subseries 1A: Carl Lieber, 1916-1944, n.d.

This subseries include the items West saved that once belonged to Lieber. Spanning his lifetime, a majority represent his military career. There is a scrapbook, letters of recommendation from various employers and associates, IDs and membership cards, articles, and military paraphernalia.

Subseries 1B: Labor and Communist Activities, 1941-1943, n.d.

A very small subseries, this includes a handwritten memo of the Egyptian Branch of the Young Communists for Democracy. Also, there is a letter form the American Youth for Democracy and a United Auto Workers-Congress of Industrial Officers bulletin.

Series 2: Correspondence, 1941-1944, n.d., Boxes 2-5

Divided into categories based on the sender, this is a comprehensive collection of correspondence between West, her two husbands, and others. West and Lieber write very frequently through 1941-1945. Their letters deal with the social issues prevalent throughout this time, especially those concerning the war efforts and their work in the Communist Party. West and her second husband also discuss their work in the CP and talk a lot about their personal relationship.

Series 3: Photographs, n.d., Boxes 5

There are many assorted photographs from the late 1930s and 1940s which are unlabeled. Organized by subject, many concern West's activism in the labor movement. Others relate to Lieber and West's induction into the Illinois Senior Hall of Fame.

Series 4: Objects and Artifacts, Oversized, n.d., Boxes 6-9

Contains mostly three dimensional objects related to Carl Lieber including a high school pendant, army cap,
